YALE BOWL RESTORATION

The historic Yale Bowl, built in 1914, is in the midst of a major renovation project to restore it to its original brilliance – and add some spectacular modern amenities. Fans entering the Bowl this year will notice a dramatic difference, and there are more great things to come.

The walkway to the Bowl from Central Avenue will soon be home to the Jensen Family Plaza. Named after four Bulldog brothers, – Irving '54, Colin '57, Erik '63 and Mark '67, the welcoming plaza will serve as the perfect place for fans to gather before and after games.

Fans and players alike will delight in the Kenney Family Field Center, located just inside the Bowl's main entrance beneath the press box. This project will incorporate renovations to the existing field center – including the halftime room – with the addition of space for special events and other functions on the top level. The center is named after Jerry P. '63, Brian R. '60, Robert D. '67, Richard L. '71 and Jeffrey S. '93, who all played for the Bulldogs.

The Yale Bowl restoration received a major donation from Charles Johnson '54, matched by his classmates, which enabled the project to move dramatically forward last year. The field is now known as the Class of 1954 Field.

2006 SEASON OUTLOOK

The 2006 Yale football team has enough returning talent to improve on last fall's 4-6 campaign and challenge for the Ivy League title. The Bulldogs return 17 of 24 starters, nine on offense and seven on defense, and their two kickers from a team that went 4-3 in the Ancient Eight. An Eli offense that returns 20 of its 31 TDs from 2005 includes every runner and three of the top four receivers. In addition, captain and WR Chandler Henley returns from an injury that prevented him from playing in 2005. The only question in the skill area is at QB, where the Bulldogs are without a varsity letterman. The Yale defense brings back 22 players who had a tackle last fall and six of its 16 interceptions, 5 of which came from senior LB Lee Driftmier. However, three of the top five tacklers from a year ago – all defensive backs – have graduated, while DB Nick Solakian must sit out 2006 with an injury.

THE OFFENSE

(6 Starters Returning, 5 Starters Lost)

LINE (0 Starters Lost, 5 Starters Returning)

Yale did not lose a starter from the 2005 front line and returns 77 game starts and an average weight of 286 pounds between seniors LT Ed McCarthy (30 starts) and LG Brett Crandall (19), juniors C Nick Wachtler (10) and RG Jeff Monaco (10) and sophomore RT Darius Dale (8). The 6-foot-5, 302-pound McCarthy was 2003 Ivy League Rookie of the Year, a 2004 second-team All-Ivy pick and a first-team selection last fall while taking nine of the 10 team offensive line game MVP awards. Crandall, a 2005 honorable mention All-Ivy pick, had two game MVP honors. Fourth-year player Jay Leybourn started 10 games in 2004 and played significant time in 2005. Seniors Steve Bassermann (6-4, 300) and Jared Holst, juniors Louis Gresham and Tom Woznicki and sophomore Ty Davis (6-2, 260) are others in the mix for varsity playing time.

NICK WACHTLER

QUARTERBACKS (1 Starter Lost, 0 Starters Returning)

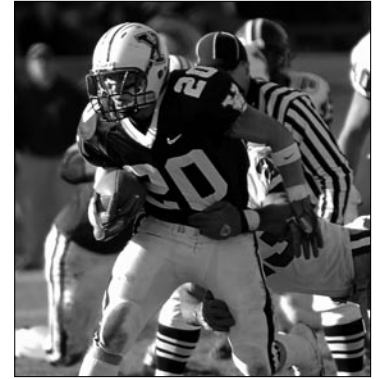

Six-foot-2, 210-pound junior Matt Polhemus was the backup to starter Jeff Mroz last season and completed his only attempted pass while rushing once for 25 yards against Columbia in the fourth quarter. Polhemus has shown an equal balance of skills. Sophomore Ryan Fodor (6-3, 195), the 2004 Connecticut Player of the Year at Hand High (CT) School, moves up from the junior varsity where he produced a lot of offense in 2005. Other candidates include senior Josh Rodarmel and sophomores Joe Dennison and Patrick Sedden.

JOE FUCCILLO (35) AND MATT POLHEMUS

RUNNING BACKS (0 Starters Lost, 2 Starters Returning)

Sophomore Mike McLeod (193-689, 3.6, 6 TD), the 2005 Ivy League Rookie of the Year, averaged 68.9 yards per game and was league rookie of the week three times. Senior Jordan Spence (108-468, 4.3, 1 TD) had the team's best average per carry and the season's longest run, a 51-yarder against Brown. Senior Taylor Craig (8 catches, 6 carries) and junior Joe Fuccillo, fullbacks who are key in pass protection, can run with the ball and are also weapons as passing targets. Versatile senior Matt Murray can help as a TB, HB or at end.

JORDAN SPENCE

WIDE RECEIVERS (1 Starter Lost, 2 Starters Returning)

Chandler Henley, the 2006 Yale captain, wasn't in spring ball but his leadership has already taken effect. He was a 2004 honorable mention All-Ivy pick (49-716, 6 TD) with receptions in 13 straight games who can go up in the air with the best of them. Classmate Ashley Wright (61-795, 10 TD) led the Ivy League in receptions, yards, TDs and yards per game (79.5). Fellow senior D.J. Shooter (16-141, 8.8, 1 TD) figures to see plenty of action. Senior RB Jordan Spence (13-81) will also spend some time at WR. Senior Jimmy Lewis and junior Chris Solga will challenge for a spot on the depth chart, while sophomores Grant MacQueen, Jarrett Drake and Ken Ebeling could move up from the junior varsity to provide depth.

ASHLEY WRIGHT

TIGHT ENDS

(1 Starter Lost, 1 Starter Returning)
Senior Dave Miller (4-37, 1 TD) and junior Langston Johnson (2-7) had most of the work last fall because of an injury to starter Alex Faherty. Both have proven they can take the top job, but look for the versatile senior TB Matt Murray to challenge here as well.

DAVE MILLER

2006 SEASON OUTLOOK

THE DEFENSE

LINE (1 Starter Lost, 2 Starters Returning)

Junior MG Brandt Hollander (19-22-41) earned honorable mention All-Ivy last fall. The 6-foot-3, 250-pound Bulldog, who may be the best defensive lineman in the league, had 7.5 tackles for lost yardage and two sacks in 2005. Junior DT Kirk Porter (21-18-39) is the other returning starter. Senior MG Rob McEwan (2-0-2) and junior tackles Jared Hamilton (3-4-7) and Stephen Schmalhofer (2-4-6) all have varsity experience. Sophomore Joe Hathaway (3-5-8) saw varsity action and will compete for a starting job this fall while classmate Brian Kana showed much promise last spring.

ENDS (1 Starter Lost, 1 Starter Returning)

Three seniors and a sophomore form a solid core of Yale defensive ends for 2006. Brendan Sponheimer (28-26-54), who had two sacks in his first full varsity campaign, is the returning starter and one of the league's top pass rushers. Chris Wright (2-0-2) returned from injury to play the last half of the season. Second-year player Kyle Hawari (4-3-7) got his feet wet enough last fall to be considered an impact player. Senior Michael McGinity (3-7-10) moves up from LB this fall after coming off an injury impacted 2005 season. Sophomore Brady Hart will also compete for an end job.

LINEBACKERS (1 Starter Lost, 2 Starters Returning)

All three senior linebackers who started games last year return with plenty of other skilled players. Lee Driftmier (54-35-89), who started all 10 games, led the team in tackles and fumbles recovered (3) and tied for the lead with five interceptions. He earned Yale's 2005 Hammer Award for the biggest hits of the year. Driftmier and sophomore Bobby Abare (14-17-31) are likely to start 2006 together with two seniors backing up. Abare, who shared Yale Special Teams Player of the Year honors with his twin brother, Larry, had two forced fumbles and a number of big plays last fall. Michael Woodson (16-20-36) has been a starter and could make this area a Yale strength in 2006. Another senior, Chris Barry (5-3-8), could also be a key.

MICHAEL WOODSON

CHRIS BARRY

SECONDARY (4 Starters Lost, 0 Starters Returning)

Senior FS Nick Solakian (29-25-54), who shared the team lead with five interceptions in his first season as a starter, had surgery last summer and will not play in 2006. The other safety candidates are juniors John (5-4-9) and Matt Coombs and sophomore Larry Abare (10-2-12), who shared the 2005 team's specialist MVP with his brother. Junior Matt Coombs has experience and will challenge at that spot. Heading into the fall there are five solid candidates for corner duties. Senior Kevin Littleton missed 2005 with an injury but would likely have been a varsity player. Juniors Matthew Jacques (2-2-4) and Andrew Liyana can win top jobs as can sophomores Steven Santoro and Casey Gerald (1-2-3).

MICHAEL MCGINITY

2006 SEASON OUTLOOK

SPECIAL TEAMS

ALAN KIMBALL

PLACEKICKERS

(0 Starters Lost, 1 Starter Returning)

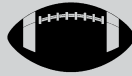

Six-foot-4, 220-pound junior Alan Kimball connected on five of 10 field goal attempts in his first year as the starter in 2005. Kimball (27-30 PAT), who booted three FGs at Columbia and also handled the kickoffs, had a long boot of 41 yards. Sophomore Brady Hart kicked for the junior varsity squad last fall.

PUNTERS (0 Starters Lost, 1 Starter Returning)

Senior Ashley Wright, who was very involved in the passing game while serving as the starting punter as well, averaged 34.1 last fall. The versatile Wright had a career-long of 64 yards at San Diego. His backup last year was junior David Silberstein.

ASHLEY WRIGHT

COACH SIEDLECKI ON THE 2006 CAMPAIGN

QUARTERBACKS

"The competition for the quarterback position will continue through preseason and probably won't be settled until the Princeton scrimmage."

STRENGTHS & CONCERNS

"The strengths are nine returning offensive starters, and the return of Chandler Henley, and a very strong defensive front back on the field. My concerns are settling on a quarterback and the inexperience in the defensive secondary. In addition, we must see marked improvement in our kicking game, while developing depth in all areas is very important."

FROSH IMPACT

"We expect some help from the newcomers in added depth and immediate help in the kicking game."

NON-LEAGUE SCHEDULE

"Lafayette and Lehigh played for the Patriot League title and an NCAA playoff bid in the last game of 2005 and are expected to be as good this fall. Lafayette has been a 1-AA playoff team the past two years and Lehigh has been to the playoffs several times in recent years. These games give us an opportunity to measure up against the top level of 1-AA outside our league. San Diego went 10-1 last year and returns nearly everyone. They are defending Pioneer League champs and are looking for their first bid to the 1-AA playoffs."

JACK SIEDLECKI — Yale's Joel E. Smilow '54 Head Coach of Football

Jack Siedlecki, the Joel E. Smilow '54 Head Coach of Football, will lead the Bulldogs for the 10th season in 2006. He has coached the Elis to a 1999 Ivy League Championship while posting a 47-42 overall (32-31 Ivy) record in New Haven.

His tenure at Yale has been highlighted by a massive assault on the school's offensive record books. Siedlecki's overall collegiate head coaching record stands at 103-64-2 (.612) in 18 campaigns.

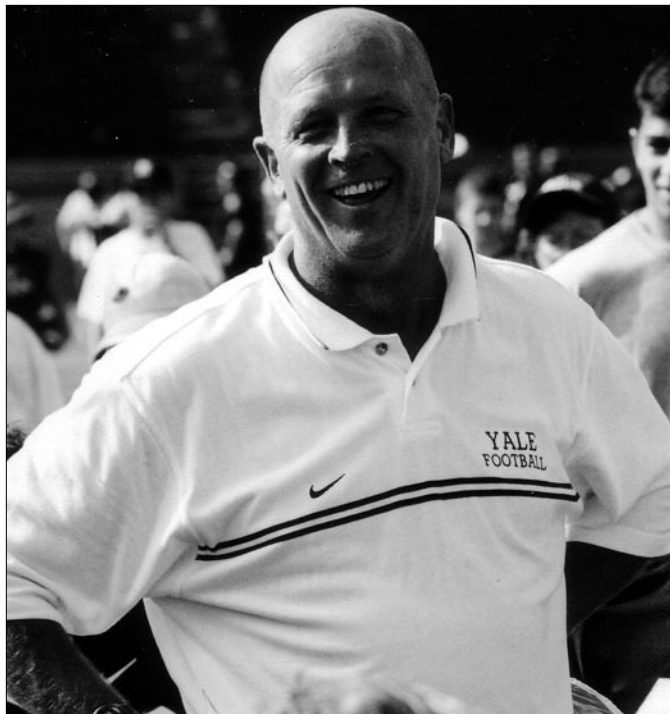

The former Amherst College head coach was named Yale's 32nd football mentor on Dec. 19, 1996. Siedlecki replaced the winningest coach in Ivy League football history, Carm Cozza, who retired in 1996 after 32 seasons.

THE TURNAROUND

Siedlecki (pronounced sid-LECK-ee) put the finishing touches on one of the most amazing transformations in college football when Yale beat Harvard on Nov. 20, 1999, before 52,484 in Yale Bowl. That last-second win, broadcast live on national television, not only gave the Bulldogs a share of the 1999 Ivy League title and a second straight H-Y-P title, it meant that Siedlecki's squad had gone from 1-9 his first year to 9-1 two years later. There were other accomplishments that came with the 1999 Yale football season for both the team and its coach, who was named 1999 Coach of the Year by the New England Sports Writers. The Bulldogs broke 53 school records and had 13 players earn All-Ivy League recognition. Four earned All-New England status and the team ranked eighth in the Lambert/Meadowlands voting. All of this came after the Elis lost the season opener and then reeled off nine straight wins. Siedlecki had already engineered the best turnaround in the history of Yale football when his 1998 team finished 6-4 overall, won the H-Y-P title and took second place in the league. The '98 Bulldogs, picked to finish last in the Ancient Eight, broke 15 offensive records and had four fourth-quarter comeback victories. He had inherited a Yale squad that did not have a quarterback with a varsity snap and was coming off a 2-8 season in 1996. The '97 Bulldogs were close to turning things around. Yale beat Valparaiso at Chicago's Soldier Field on Oct. 3, came within a point of a Bucknell team that finished 10-1, and was in all but two Ivy League contests.

NATIONAL ATTENTION

Siedlecki's Bulldogs, who have led the nation (both I-A and I-AA) in fewest turnovers twice, have produced three All-America offensive players while helping to change the face of the game in the Ivy League. His innovative style and perspective on the game have earned him national attention.

BREAKING RECORDS, EARNING HONORS

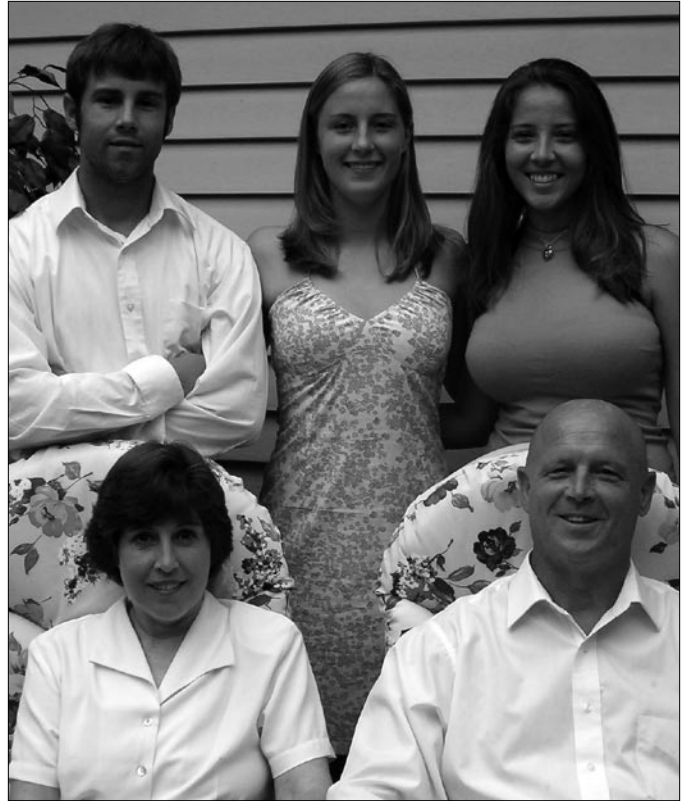

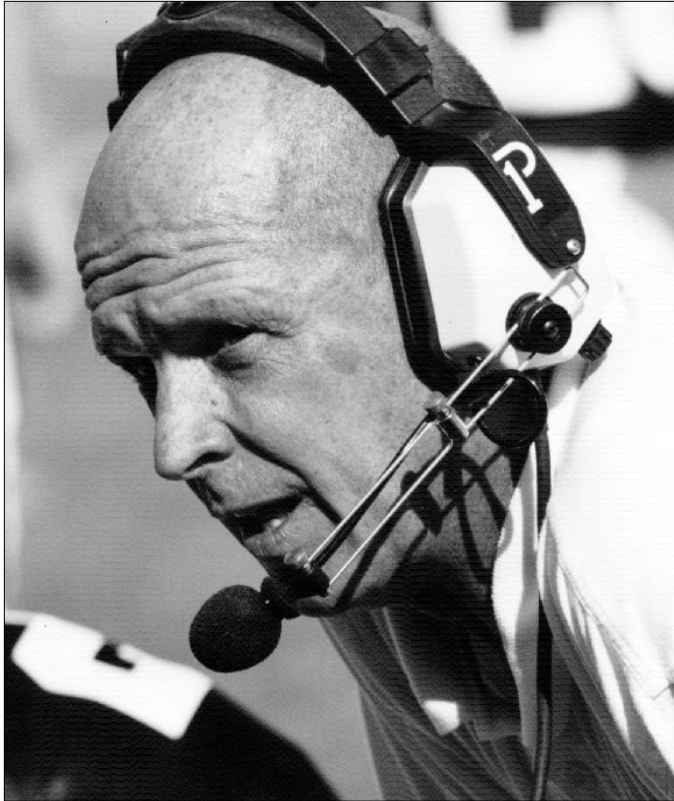

Siedlecki's offensive wizardry has turned the Yale football team into one of the most exciting teams in the East. His prize pupils, quarterbacks Joe Walland '00 and Alvin Cowan '04, became the most prolific offensive players in the history of Yale football. The 2000 campaign brought many team and individual accolades as well, while the 7-3 Bulldogs finished third in the standings. The Elis had the longest active win streak in I-AA until falling at Cornell in week No. 2. Ten players earned All-Ivy honors and Yale became the first college football team to win 800 games with its victory over Dayton at Yale Bowl on Sept. 16. Under Siedlecki, Yale players have been named first team All-Ivy 24 times, and the Elis have broken a slew of records, including individual career marks for passing yardage, rushing yardage and every important receiving standard.

BEFORE YALE

Siedlecki, who has 30 years of college coaching experience, compiled a 20-11-1 record at Division III Amherst in four seasons and was the 1996 American Football Coaches Association District I Coach of the Year after going 7-1 and winning the New England Small College Athletic Conference championship. He replaced another New England coaching legend in Amherst's Jim Ostendarp, who had led the Lord Jeffs, like Cozza, for 32 seasons. Siedlecki turned around an Amherst program that had gone 1-14-1 the two previous seasons, including 0-8 in 1992. He had his 36-11-1 mark in five campaigns as head football coach at Division III Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute, where his 1990 team went 8-0-1 and the 1992 squad had a 9-1 record and was ranked first in the ECAC New England poll. Siedlecki, who has been both an offensive and defensive coordinator, was the 1992 AFCA Kodak District I Coach of the Year at WPI. An assistant coach at the University of Albany (1976-79), Wagner College (1980) and Lafayette College (1981-87), Siedlecki has coached three different teams (Albany '77, Wagner '80, WPI '92) in the national playoffs. He and Harvard head coach Tim Murphy were roommates as assistant coaches at Lafayette, while Siedlecki also coached with Pennsylvania mentor Al Bagnoli at Albany.

THE SIEDLECKIS: NANCY, JACK, KEVIN, AMY AND JACKIE

A RENAISSANCE MAN

Yale's football mentor has coached four different positions since entering the college coaching business in 1976. He has concentrated on inside linebackers and the offensive line and has been both a defensive and offensive coordinator. Siedlecki served as both head coach and offensive line coach from 1988 to 1996.

THE LEADER

The Yale mentor is a leader off the field as well. Siedlecki serves on the American Football Coaches Association All-America selection committees and is a VP of the I-AA Football Coaches executive committee.

THE BEGINNING

Siedlecki is a 1974 graduate of Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., where he earned letters playing both running back and linebacker and earned a B.A. in history. His finest day in a Union uniform came in 1972 when he scored three touchdowns in a 38-21 win over RPI. He also coached--the youngest person ever to do so--and played for the Glove Cities Colonials, a semi-pro squad in New York. Siedlecki, also a letterman in baseball as a pitcher, was a three-sport star at Johnstown (N.Y.) High School, where his father served as head coach for more than 20 seasons.

PERSONAL

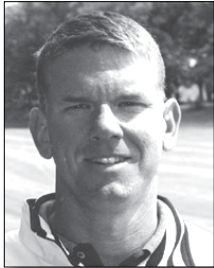

Siedlecki, born July 23, 1951, and his wife, Nancy, have three children: Kevin, 23; Jackie, 21; and Amy, 18.

DesJarlais served as San Diego's interim head coach the final four games of the 2003 season, winning three of the last four games and finishing 8-2 overall. USD defeated rival Dayton in the season finale to earn a share of the PFL North Division championship. That San Diego defense ranked 29th in Division I-AA against the rush (125.0) and fifth in turnover margin (1.30). “The tradition here is unbelievable. To be involved in Yale football’s fraternity of captains, guys that have gone on to do such great things, is very flattering.”

— Chandler Henley

“Sometimes a player stands out when he is under adverse conditions. Chandler knew he couldn’t play, but he took on a role of helping the younger players instead of feeling sorry for himself. He’s gone above and beyond the call of duty, and that’s something our players admire.”

THE GAME

Pride is not the only thing at stake when Yale and Harvard meet. A Look at The (Big) Games

The football teams of Yale and Harvard have produced one of the greatest and most famous rivalries in the history of collegiate athletics over the last 121 meetings. From the first game in 1875 — a rugby-style battle in New Haven — to the 1968 battle of unbeaten at Boston that finished in the most famous of college football ties, this intense competition renders all statistics obsolete. Pride is not the only thing at stake when the Bulldogs and Crimson meet. Since the Ivy League was officially formed in 1956, these archrivals have had a bearing on 21 Ancient Eight titles on the last weekend of the season.

JACK FORD '72, HANK HIGDON '63 AND YALE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR TOM BECKETT AT THE 2005 IVY FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION DINNER

* Denotes League Game

THE IVY LEAGUE

NCAA DIVISION I ATHLETICS AT ITS BEST

The Ivy League is truly one of a kind.

While the 2005-06 academic year marked the 50th season of official Ivy League athletic competition, the rivalries and traditions in the League go so much deeper. The first official athletic competition between League schools was more than 150 years ago (1852, Harvard-Yale rowing) and the first football game was more than 130 years ago (1872, Columbia-Yale).

In the early days, the Ivy schools dominated college athletics. All-America status, Olympic medals and national championships were routinely earned by students from the Ancient Eight.

Today, Ivy Leaguers continue to claim national titles and Olympic medals – as well as All-America and Academic All-America status. Hundreds continue athletic careers as professionals and hundreds more as coaches and athletic administrators. The student-athletes also are among the nation's leading public servants, doctors, journalists, lawyers, scientists, scholars, business leaders, entertainers, educators and so much more.

The success of the League comes without athletic scholarships while maintaining self-imposed high academic standards. The Ivy League has demonstrated a rare willingness and ability, given the pressures on intercollegiate success throughout the nation, to abide by these rules and still compete successfully in Division I athletics.

Sponsoring conference championships in 33 men's and women's sports, and averaging more than 35 varsity teams at each school, the Ivy League provides intercollegiate athletic opportunities for more men and women than any other conference in the country. All eight Ivy schools are among the "top 20" of NCAA Division I schools in number of sports offered for both men and women.

The term "Ivy colleges" was first in October, 1933 by Stanley Woodward of the New York Herald Tribune to describe the eight current Ivy schools (plus Army). On Feb. 8, 1935, Associated Press sports editor Alan Gould first used the exact term "Ivy League."

The first "Ivy Group Agreement," signed in 1945, applied only to football. It affirmed the observance of common practices in academic standards and eligibility requirements and the administration of need-based financial aid, with no athletic scholarships. The agreement created the Presidents Policy Committee, including the eight Presidents; the Coordination and Eligibility Committee, made up of one senior non-athletic administrator from each school; and the committee on Administration, comprised of the eight directors of athletics.

The Ivy Presidents extended the Ivy Group Agreement to all intercollegiate sports in February 1954. Their statement also focused on presidential governance of the League, the importance of intra-League competition, and a desire that recruited athletes be academically 'representative' of each institution's overall student body. Although that is the official founding date, the first competition year was 1956-57.

The League office is housed in Princeton, N.J., under the leadership of Executive Director Jeffrey H. Orleans, who has been at that post since 1984.

Since 2000 alone, the Ivy League has...

- Produced 26 individual and 10 team NCAA national champions. The League has also had national champions in a number of non-NCAA sports like squash and men's rowing.
- Posted an average number of 18.3 teams per school to be honored by the NCAA for outstanding Academic Progress Rates in 2005-06. No other single school in the nation met the Ivy League's average.
- Had more than 100 All-Americans each year.
- Averaged more than a dozen Academic All-Americans (including an all-time high of 17 in 2004-05)
- Had 162 competitors at the four Olympic Games (2000, 2002, 2004, 2006). Those 162 have collected 53 medals, including 18 gold.
- Sent hundreds of athletes into the professional ranks, including dozens of NFL players including Sean Morey and Isaiah Kacyvenski, who met at midfield as team captains at Super Bowl XL
- Hosted the first ESPN College GameDay football show to draw more than 1.5 million households.
- Became the first conference to 'sweep' the four major NCAA Awards in the same year. Columbia's Robert Kraft claiming the Roosevelt Award; Princeton's John Doar the Inspirational Award; Yale's Susan Wellington the Silver Anniversary; and Brown's Nick Hartigan the Top VIII.

YALE FOOTBALL FROM A – Z

ABARE, LARRY AND BOBBY

Besides contributing significantly on special teams and defense last fall, current sophomores Larry and Bobby Abare gained another distinction: Their names head the alphabetical list of nearly 3,000 men – together with several female managers – who have earned letters in football at Yale.

ALL-AMERICANS

Twice in this decade, a Yale player has been named a first-team Division I-AA All-American by the American Football Coaches Association. Offensive tackle Rory Hennessey was chosen in 2004, tight end Nate Lawrie in 2003. Beginning in 1889, Yale men have earned exactly 100 places on the consensus All-America team (now limited to Division I-A) recognized by the NCAA. That is the nation's highest total. Notre Dame is runner-up with 94. Several other Yale players were named by one or more NCAA-approved selectors but were not consensus choices.

ALL-IVY

Offensive tackle Ed McCarthy and wide receiver Ashley Wright were Yale's representatives on the 2005 All-Ivy League first team. Starting with 1956, the league's first year of round-robin competition, Yale has had 171 first-team selections.

"BOOLA-BOOLA"

The origins of this song have been shrouded in myth. For years "boola" was thought to be a Hawaiian expression of joy – but there is no "b" sound in the Hawaiian language. Upon further review, it appears three Yale students, Allan M. Hirsh, F.M. Van Wincklen and A.H. Marckwald, wrote the words of "Boola, Boola" to fit the tune of "La Hoola Boola" – a song by Bob Cole and Billy Johnson, African-American entertainers who performed in New Haven in the 1890s. What is certain is that the Yale version made its public debut at the Harvard game at old Yale Field on Nov. 24, 1900, and has remained a staple at Yale games and songfests for more than a century.

BOOTH, ALBIE

He stood only 5 feet 7 and weighed just 144 pounds, but among athletes of his era (1929-32) Booth was a giant. Captain of Yale's football and basketball teams (he turned down the baseball captaincy), he brought out huge crowds even in the Depression years. Booth gained instant fame as a sophomore when he scored all three touchdowns and kicked the conversions in a 21-13 upset of Army before nearly 75,000. In three seasons he rushed for 1,428 yards, amassed 1,138 yards on kick returns and intercepted eight passes. Yale's record during those years was 15-5-5. He scored 17 touchdowns and kicked 24 extra points and four field goals, including one that beat Harvard 3-0 in 1931. Booth subsequently became one of college football's top referees, officiating big games such as Army-Navy and the Sugar Bowl. He died in 1959.

BOWL GAMES

Under the Ivy League Presidents' Agreement of 1954, Yale cannot take part in post-season football games. That doesn't mean Yale can't compete against bowl-caliber teams. Yale's 1981 team, which went 9-1, numbered Navy's Liberty Bowl squad among its victims, 23-19. Yale's most recent encounter with a bowl team was in 1996 when the Bulldogs met Army, bound for the Independence Bowl. Yale led 7-6 with 48 seconds left in the first half before Army took control to win 39-13. Yale was represented in a bowl game, however, as recently as January 2005. The field judge for the 2005 Rose Bowl was Bob Sokolowski '69 of Meriden, Conn., a lawyer who as an undergraduate was baseball captain as well as a punt returner and reserve running back.

"BRIGHT COLLEGE YEARS"

The words "alma mater" don't appear in its three verses, but this song serves that function at Yale. Traditionally just the first and last verses are sung, the latter ending with the famous line, "For God, for country and for Yale," accompanied by a ceremonial waving of handkerchiefs. The tune is that of "Die Wacht am Rhein" ("The Watch on the Rhine"), a 19th-century German anthem composed by Carl Wilhelm.

BUSH FAMILY

GEORGE W. BUSH

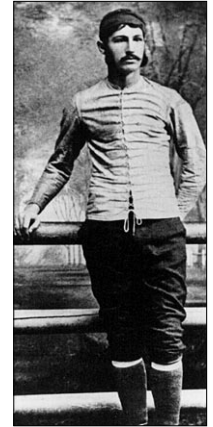

President George W. Bush '68 was a fullback at Yale – but the sport was rugby, not American football. He turned to rugby after pitching for the freshman baseball team (12 1/3 innings, 1-0, 1.46 ERA). His father, former President George H.W. Bush '48, was the first baseman on Yale baseball teams that played in the 1947 and 1948 College World Series. The late Prescott Bush, father of the ex-president and himself a U.S. senator, was Yale's first baseman in 1915. The family's football connection is Jonathan Bush, another of Prescott Bush's sons. He was a kicking specialist whose extra points provided a 14-13 win over Holy Cross in 1950.

CAMP, WALTER 1880

Revered as the "father of American football," Walter Camp also was the guiding spirit of Yale football through most of its first half-century. As a member of the football rules committee, Camp altered British rugby by introducing the neutral zone, the concept of downs and yards to gain, yardage penalties, and scoring in points instead of goals. As a player at Yale, he was on teams with a combined record of 30-1-6; as Yale's coach, he had a 67-2 record and employed the earliest form of the T formation. As an author, he made millions of Americans fitness-conscious through his "Daily Dozen" exercises. Though he had business interests that took him away from active coaching – he became treasurer and later president of the New Haven Clock Co. – he remained on the Yale scene for decades as an adviser to coaches and overseer of Yale's athletic finances. His service on the football rules committee extended from 1879 to the day of his death, which occurred between sessions of the committee's meetings in 1925.

CANADIANS

Players brought up on the 12-a-side Canadian game have been relatively rare at Yale, but one was a recent Yale captain – defensive lineman Corwynne Carruthers of Peterborough, Ontario, leader of the 1998 squad. Two Yale graduates have played pro ball in the Canadian Football League – Bob McKeown, starting center with Ottawa in the early 1970s, and Marshall Hamilton, a defensive back with Saskatchewan in the early 1980s. Hamilton concentrated on hockey as an undergraduate.

CHAMPIONSHIPS, IVY

Since the Ivy League instituted round-robin play in 1956, Yale has won 13 championships – six outright (1956, 1960, 1967, 1977, 1979, 1980) and seven shared (1968, 1969, 1974, 1976, 1981, 1989, 1999). Only Dartmouth (16) has won more Ivy titles than Yale.

CHAMPIONSHIPS, NATIONAL

Yale has won recognition as national champion or co-champion in 26 seasons from one or more of the selection systems listed by the NCAA Record Book. For nine seasons, Yale was the unanimous choice of those selecting – 1876, 1882, 1883, 1888, 1891, 1892, 1900, 1907 and 1909. Yale was consensus champion for 1884 and 1894. Yale also was deemed champion or co-champion by at least one selector for 1872, 1874, 1877, 1879, 1880, 1881, 1886, 1893, 1895, 1897, 1901, 1902, 1905, 1906 and 1927. The 1927 squad lost only a 14-10 game to Georgia, also tabbed by some selectors as national champion for that year.

YALE FOOTBALL FROM A – Z

CO-CAPTAINS

They're one thing you'll never see on a Yale football team. Yale tradition calls for a single leader. He's elected by the returning lettermen, usually before or during spring practice.

COZZA, CARMEN

A legend in football circles, Cozza was Yale's head coach for 32 seasons (1965-96) and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in December 2002. His record was 179-119-5, with 10 whole or partial Ivy League championships. At the time he retired, he stood 12th in victories among active Division I-A and I-AA coaches. He now serves as the analyst on WELI's radio broadcasts of Yale football.

"CRADLE OF COACHES"

Though now used by Carm Cozza's alma mater, Miami of Ohio, this sobriquet could as easily have applied to Yale through much of football history. From the game's beginnings to the World War II era, many of the great coaches were Yale products. Among the most renowned were Walter Camp, with a combined record of 79-5-3 at Yale and Stanford; George W. Woodruff, who pioneered the use of pulling offensive linemen and had an .846 winning average at Penn, Illinois and Carlisle; Dr. Harry Williams, who did almost that well (.786) in 23 years at Army and Minnesota and developed the "Minnesota shift" offense; Amos Alonzo Stagg, another innovator who won 314 games as a head coach over 57 seasons; and Howard Jones, who coached undefeated teams at Yale and Iowa and won five Rose Bowls at Southern California. The first coaches at Penn, Dartmouth, Indiana, Duke, Lehigh, Stanford, California and Washington all came from Yale. Yale currently is represented in the head coaching ranks by Dick Jauron, a former NFL star who took over the Buffalo Bills this year and formerly coached the Chicago Bears. Jauron was named Associated Press Coach of the Year when the Bears won their division in 2001.

DIANA, RICH '82

Few football players have embodied the Ivy League ideal of the student athlete more than Dr. Rich Diana '82. An All-America running back, as well as center fielder and leadoff man for a baseball team that reached the NCAA Regionals, he graduated cum laude from Yale with a major in molecular biochemistry and biophysics. His medical school education was financed in part by an NCAA postgraduate scholarship and a Super Bowl check earned with the Miami Dolphins. Today he's a partner in Connecticut Orthopaedic Specialists, the group that treats Yale football players. He also has served a number of other teams, including the Boston Red Sox.

DIVISION I-AA

As a member of the Ivy League, Yale was classified in Division I-AA when the NCAA broke Division I into two sections in 1982. Yale has continued to meet Division I-A teams intermittently and will revive one of its I-A rivalries, with Army, in 2010.

DOWLING, BRIAN '69

The only Yale football player to have a comic-strip character named for him, Dowling led Yale to Ivy championships in 1967 and 1968 and led Division I in passing efficiency in 1968 with a rating of 165.8. Though injuries limited his Yale career to 18 games (one a cameo appearance as a wideout), Dowling remains among Yale's top 10 in career total offense (2,927 yards). Throughout high school (St. Ignatius in Cleveland) and college, his teams never lost a game he was able to finish. Also a varsity baseball and basketball player at Yale, Dowling was immortalized by cartoonist Garry Trudeau '70. Dowling became B.D. in Trudeau's Yale Daily News strip "Bull Tales," the forerunner of today's "Doonesbury."

"DOWN THE FIELD"

In the fall of 1990 Bill Studwell, a librarian at Northern Illinois University and self-styled expert on fight songs, spent more than a month listening to recorded songs and ranking the most inspiring. Yale's "Down the Field" placed fourth, trailing only the Notre Dame Victory March, Michigan's "Hail to the Victors" and "On, Wisconsin." First sung at Princeton's University Field in 1904, "Down the Field" was composed by Stanleigh Friedman '05 and written by C.W. O'Connor.

EIGHT HUNDRED

By defeating Dayton 42-6 on Sept. 16, 2000, Yale became America's first football program – school, college or pro – to reach 800 victories. Yale beat Michigan (now the leader in victories, thanks to 12-game seasons) to the 800 milestone by two weeks.

THE GAME BALL FROM THE 800TH WIN SITS IN THE COLLEGE FOOTBALL HALL OF FAME

ELIS

Once a common nickname for Yale teams, "Elis" has been replaced by Bulldogs in many instances since the rise of women's sports at Yale. Eli, of course, is a male name, in this case short for Elihu. It was Elihu Yale, a merchant with the British East India Co. in Madras, who gave the Collegiate School of Connecticut three bales of goods, including books and textiles, in 1718. Sale of the textiles raised 562 English pounds and enabled the school to erect its first building in New Haven. In gratitude, the trustees changed the school's name to Yale College.

FATHERS AND SONS

Numerous sets of fathers and sons have played football for Yale, among them Ed McCarthy, All-Ivy tackle on the current offensive line, and his father, Rick, an All-Ivy offensive guard in 1967. The most famous duo may have been the Moseleys – All-Americans George Moseley, an end in 1916, and Spencer Moseley, center and captain in 1942. Other father-son notables included Walter Camp, who played from 1876 to 1882, and Walter Jr., in 1911 and 1912, both at halfback; Abbott and Glover Lawrence, All-Ivy tackles in 1963 and 1989, respectively, and Chuck and Tom Mercein, fullbacks respectively in 1962-64 and 1984-86. The two Merceins wore the same number, 30.

FRESHMEN

Under Ivy League rules, freshmen became eligible for varsity football in 1993. Prior to that fall, freshmen had been barred from varsity competition since 1906 with the exception of the period during and just after World War II. Yale maintained a separate football program for freshmen until the end of the 1992 season.

FRINZI, SABBY

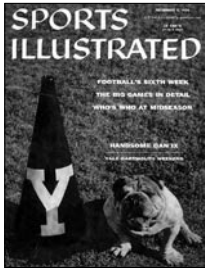

A fixture on the sidelines at Yale Bowl, Sabby Frinzi of Hamden, Conn., has been shooting photos of Yale games for more than three decades. He has made countless friends among Yale athletes and has been invited to work the weddings of some long after their graduation.

HANDSOME DAN

Traditionally Yale's bulldog mascot is known as Handsome Dan, the name given to the first Yale bulldog in 1889. Last year Yale acquired a new bulldog, Handsome Dan XVI, chosen in a competition on campus April 27, 2005. Owned by Robert Sansone of Hamden, Conn., and originally named Magnificent Mugsy Rangoon, Dan XVI appears at football games and other events, including graduation. He succeeded Dan XV, also known as Louis, who died on Jan. 21, 2005, after nine years as Yale's mascot. The original Yale bulldog was purchased by a student, Andrew B. Graves, class of 1892S, from a New Haven blacksmith for $65. Graves thought the dog looked like “a cross between an alligator and a horned toad” but gave him a good scrubbing and named him Handsome Dan. He followed his master to classes and to games and – tradition says – barked whenever Yale scored. He also won awards at some 30 dog shows before his death in 1898. His body was preserved by a taxidermist and today occupies a special case in the trophy room of Payne Whitney Gymnasium.

HEFFELFINGER, PUDGE 1891S

Any all-star team for football’s first 100 years includes William Walter “Pudge” Heffelfinger, class of 1891, who made All-America three times and failed to make it as a freshman only because the All-America hadn’t been invented yet. Despite his nickname, Heffelfinger wasn’t pudgy – he was 6 feet 3, about 210 pounds and fast. He revolutionized offensive guard play as the first lineman to pull out and block on end sweeps. On defense he caused pure havoc. Facing Princeton’s V-wedge formation as a freshman, he took a running leap and, knees drawn up, landed on the apex man’s chest. The wedge collapsed. Heffelfinger’s football career began early – as a high school student in Minneapolis, he played for the Minnesota varsity, permissible then – and continued long after his Yale years. In 1892 the Allegheny Athletic Association paid him $500 to play a game in Pittsburgh, making him football’s first pro. He coached at Lehigh, California and Minnesota. In 1916, at the age of 48, he scrimmaged against the Yale varsity and gave Mac Baldrige, a starting tackle, two broken ribs. At 53, Heffelfinger played 56 minutes alongside collegians in an all-star game in Columbus, Ohio. He died in 1954 at 86. Of him the late sports writer Grantland Rice remarked, “His kind will never pass this way again.”

HEISMAN TROPHY

Larry Kelley ’37 and Clint Frank ’38 were the first players from the same college to win back-to-back Heisman Trophies. Kelley, an offensive and defensive end and Yale’s captain, caught 17 passes for 372 yards in 1936 as the Bulldogs went 7-1. For his career he had 49 receptions for 889 yards and scored 13 touchdowns. Later a prep school teacher and fund-raiser, he died at 85 in the summer of 2000. Frank, a tailback, defensive halfback and also captain, rushed for 630 yards and scored 11 touchdowns in 1937, when Yale was 6-1-1.

For his career he rushed 321 times for 1,244 yards and completed 59 passes for 937 yards and 9 touchdowns. He became a Chicago advertising executive and died in 1992. Frank had been fifth in the 1936 Heisman voting. Among more recent Yale players, Brian Dowling was ninth in the 1968 Heisman balloting and Rich Diana was 10th in 1981.

HILL, CALVIN ’69

Known to many sports fans today as the father of NBA star Grant Hill, Calvin is remembered around Yale as one of the Blue’s most versatile and successful athletes. He was an All-Ivy running back for Yale’s league champions of 1967 and ’68, as well as a track performer who set a Heptagonal outdoor record in the long jump. Besides scoring 24 touchdowns in his Yale career, he threw six touchdown passes and once, in an intrasquad game, kicked a 52-yard field goal. Chosen by Dallas in the first round of the 1969 NFL draft, he became the Cowboys’ first 1,000-yard rusher, made All-Pro twice and was chosen for four Pro Bowls. A former vice president of the Baltimore Orioles, he now has is active as a consultant in areas from sports marketing to alcohol and drug rehabilitation.

IVY LEAGUE

Yale plays football in the Ivy League, America’s most stable major conference. Half a century after its launching, the league has the same eight members as at its start: Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Yale. Long recognized as an informal group of distinguished schools, the Ivies came together formally through the Presidents’ Agreement of 1954, which set forth standards on academic progress, awarding of scholarships, scheduling, eligibility, and postseason and all-star participation. The agreement was implemented with the start of round-robin scheduling in 1956-57. Since then, Yale has won 13 football championships (six outright, seven shared).

JACKSON, LEVI ’50

The first African-American to play football at Yale, Jackson distinguished himself on campus and in later life, when he became a top executive of Ford Motor Co. A four-sport star at New Haven’s Hillhouse High School, he burst onto the Yale scene as a freshman in 1946, when he ranked fifth among major-college backs in rushing.

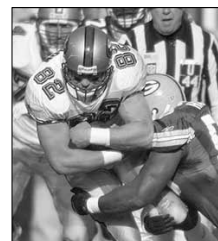

LEVI JACKSON WITH HIS HEAD COACH, HERMAN HICKMAN

Injuries his sophomore year took away some of his speed, but he graduated owning 13 Yale records in rushing, total offense, kickoff returns, scoring and punting. He was Yale’s 1949 football captain and was a reserve on the basketball team that narrowly lost to Illinois in the 1949 NCAA tournament. Joining Ford after graduation, he rose from a job in personnel to become head of the company’s urban affairs program, a nationwide effort to provide job training and opportunities for the disadvantaged. He also served on a presidential commission on amnesty for draft evaders. He died in December 2000.

JOHNSON, CHARLES ’54

Though listed as a 183-pound third-string guard on the 1953 team’s depth chart, Johnson has been huge when it comes to support of Yale athletics. Chairman and chief executive of Franklin Resources, a major mutual fund company, he is the lead donor for the current $21 million project to renovate Yale Bowl. He also has given the university Johnson Field, a synthetic-turf complex used for field hockey and women’s lacrosse. The Ivy League Football Association honored him in January 2005 with one of its eight alumni awards.

JOHNSON CAUGHT 4 PASSES IN HIS 1ST PLAYOFF GAME

JOHNSON, ERIC ’01

A record-setting wide receiver at Yale, Johnson is entering his sixth year as a tight end in the pros with the San Francisco 49ers. In 2004, with a team that won only two games, he was third among NFL tight ends in receptions (82) and fourth in receiving yardage (825). At Yale from 1997 through 2000, Johnson set 11 receiving records and one in punting. He had at least one catch in 24 successive games, but the biggest was his sliding grab with 29 seconds left that beat Harvard 24-21 in 1999. He had 21 catches for 244 yards in that game, which earned Yale a share of the Ivy title. For his career he had 181 catches for 2,144 yards and 23 touchdowns, all Yale records. He was a starter with San Francisco in 2001, 2002 and 2004, missing the 2003 and 2005 seasons with injuries.

JONES, T.A.D. 1908S

Jones, a former Yale All-American who was the Blue's head coach for 10 seasons (1916-17, 1920-27), put the Yale-Harvard series in perspective with this pregame oration:

"Gentlemen, you are now going out to play football against Harvard. Never again in your whole life will you do anything so important."

McCLUNG, BUM 1892

His nickname was Bum, but Thomas Lee McClung was no stranger to money. He served as treasurer of the United States in the Taft administration (1909-12) after stints as treasurer of Yale and an executive of the Southern Railway. An All-America halfback in 1890 and captain of an unscored-on (13-0) Yale team in 1891, McClung would have run up huge numbers on the gridiron if statistics had been kept as they are today. Accounts in the student newspaper, the Yale Daily News, show that in his four seasons, at the very least, he scored 63 touchdowns (4 points each) and kicked 129 goals after touchdown (2 points each) for a total of 510 points. Because some stories on lopsided games omitted details, however, it is likely his actual point total was between 540 and 560. It didn't seem to matter to McClung, who as captain skipped some of his own team's games so he could scout Princeton and Harvard.

MERRIWELL, FRANK

Frank Merriwell was a fictional figure whose feats of athletic derring-do for Yale were the stuff of dime novels from 1896 to 1913. He was the creation of Gilbert Patten – pen name Burt L. Standish – who produced the Merriwell series for the Tip Top Library. Merriwell's name still is invoked when a Yale player pulls out a last-minute victory – or when writers are seeking a comparison for a real-life Yale hero such as Ted Coy or Brian Dowling.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Forty-two Yale players have been drafted by NFL teams, starting with Bob Train, an end tapped by Detroit in the draft's first year, 1936. Two Yale alumni have been first-round choices: guard Fritz Barzilauskas, picked by the Boston Yanks as the third player overall in December 1946, and running back Calvin Hill, taken by the Dallas Cowboys in 1969. Linebacker Jeff Rohrer (Dallas, 1982) was a second-round selection. Twenty-six Yale men have played in the NFL, from Fido Kempton (Canton, 1921) to Eric Johnson (currently with San Francisco). Yale was represented on NFL rosters for 29 consecutive years from 1961 to 1989. Two Yale alumni, Dick Jauron '73 and Charley Ewart '38, have been NFL head coaches. Jauron this year takes over the Buffalo Bills, having previously coached the Chicago Bears. A number of Yale alumni have held NFL executive positions.

NATIONAL LEADERS

Two Yale men have been national statistical leaders since the NCAA began compiling statistics in 1937. Quarterback Brian Dowling led Division I in passing efficiency in 1968 with a 165.8 rating. Herb Hallas led Division I in punt return average (23.4 yards) in 1958. In addition, Yale men hold several lines in the NCAA's All-Time Record Book for performances such as Henry Beecher's 11 rushing touchdowns against Wesleyan on Oct. 30, 1886. In the modern era, Yale owns several team records. Yale led Division I-A in defense against rushing (75.0 yards per game) and total defense (175.4) in 1979. The undefeated 1960 team led the nation in kickoff return average (26.7 yards), and the 1938 team was the least penalized (8 penalties for 50 yards). Yale had Division I-AA's fewest turnovers – 11 in 10 games – in 2003, tied for the fewest (12) in 2002, and led Division I-AA in turnover margin (1.7 per game) in 1998.

NEVER ON SUNDAY

In its first 128 years of football, Yale never played a varsity football game on a Sunday. That changed on Oct. 7, 2001, when the Dartmouth game was moved to Sunday because the Bowl that weekend was host to Yale's 300th anniversary ceremonies. Actually, Yale had played one game that started on Sunday New Haven time – the 1987 game at Hawaii – but its official kickoff time was 7:30 Saturday night in Honolulu. Yale played numerous games on Wednesdays in the 19th century, when the season was limited to 10 Saturdays but the schedule included as many as 16 games. Yale also played several Thursday games in that era, meeting Princeton or Harvard on Thanksgiving in New York. Two games (with Virginia Tech, 1916, and Valparaiso, 1997) have been played on Fridays, the latter a night game at Chicago's Soldier Field.

NOTRE DAME

Yale and Notre Dame have met just once on the gridiron. That was in 1914, when the Irish came to New Haven carrying a 27-game unbeaten streak. Yale won 28-0. Knute Rockne, an assistant coach with Notre Dame that season, never lost his respect for Yale. Years later, asked where he got the idea for the Notre Dame shift, Rockne is said to have replied: "Where everything else in football came from – Yale!"

OVERTIME

Yale's 30-24 loss to Harvard last fall was one for the books – the first game in Ivy League history to go three overtimes. It was the third game Yale has played under the NCAA's current overtime rule. The others were in 2003. Yale rallied from a three-touchdown deficit to force overtime against Penn but lost 34-31; three weeks later, after another dramatic comeback, the Blue beat Princeton in double overtime, 27-24. Prior to that Yale's only known overtime game had been against Princeton in 1881. That game went two extra periods before darkness stopped it with the score 0-0.

PHILLIPS, STONE '77

Before becoming a media star as anchor of NBC's "Dateline," Stone Phillips was quarterback of Yale's 1975 (7-2) and 1976 (8-1) teams. He gained All-Ivy League honorable mention both years. Prior to joining "Dateline" he was a correspondent for ABC News.

PORTER, COLE '13

Porter never played a second of football for Yale, but he's part of every Yale game nonetheless. Beginning his composing career while an undergraduate, he wrote the peppy Yale song "Bingo" in 1910. His "Bulldog, bulldog, bow-wow-wow" is played whenever Yale's team takes the field and after every Yale score.

RADIO

The first known broadcast of a Yale football game on a commercial station was of the Army game in 1923, carried by WEAJ, New York. The Bulldogs have been on their current outlet, Hamden-based WELI (AM 960), for most of the last 50 years.

RETIRED NUMBERS

In part because many of Yale's football immortals played in the era before jerseys were numbered, Yale never has retired a number. Yale did hold out of use at various times the numbers worn by three players who died while undergraduates: Norman S. Hall '30 (No. 45), Edward P. McCarthy '65 (No. 17) and Brenton M. Kirk '76 (No. 69).

RHODES SCHOLARS

Six Yale football players have been selected as Rhodes Scholars – Larry McQuade '50, Tom Neville '71, Kurt Schmoke '71, Bill Crowley '79, Roosevelt Thompson '84 and Chris Brown '90.

YALE'S LONGEST ROAD TRIP WAS A 1987 EXCURSION TO HAWAII

ROAD TRIPS

Yale's longest football trip was in 1987, when the Bulldogs crossed six time zones to meet Hawaii at Honolulu. Yale lost 62-10 in a game that ended at 4:30 Sunday morning

YALE FOOTBALL FROM A – Z

New Haven time. Yale traveled to California in 1999 and 2005 to play the University of San Diego. Yale made forays south as long ago as 1929, when the Bulldogs played in the dedication game of Georgia's Sanford Stadium. More recently (1993) Yale played Central Florida in Orlando.

SERIES

YALE VS. PRINCETON, 1890

Yale's longest-running football series is its rivalry with Princeton. The schools have met 128 times, Yale leading 70-48-10. The only collegiate rivalry comprising more games is between Lafayette and Lehigh, which used to meet twice or more per season. Yale has met Harvard 122 times and leads that series 64-50-8. Yale and Brown have met 110 times (Yale leads 74-31-5) and have met without interruption for the longest period, 74 years.

CALVIN HILL (L) AND JOEL SMILOW

SMILOW, JOEL E. '54

A great friend of Yale athletics, this member of the class of 1954 has endowed four Yale head coaching positions, including that of the football coach. An additional gift 13 years ago helped renovate and expand the 1932-vintage Lapham Field House, now known as the Joel E. Smilow Field Center. His leadership gift and contributions from other alumni and friends have given Yale one of the finest facilities of its kind in the country, serving both men's and women's teams. Features include locker rooms, training rooms, coaches' offices, conference rooms, a weight room, an equipment room and a lounge area. Smilow endowed the Yale head coaching positions for men's and women's basketball and women's lacrosse in 2003.

TAILGATING

Whether tailgate parties were invented at Yale or merely refined there is a question. What is known is that before major Yale games – especially against Harvard – the fields around the Bowl are the scene of countless parties, whether at station wagon tailgates, in campers with dining rooms or at candelabrum-decked tables rigged up on a soccer practice field. Whether the fare is hot dogs or caviar, tailgating makes a football Saturday at Yale a lot more than just the game.

"THE GAME"

The annual battle between Yale and Harvard has been the last game on each school's schedule since 1936, except for two seasons during World War II. Its schedule position, together with its frequent bearing on the Ivy League championship, has helped this contest become known since the late 1950s simply as "The Game." Begun in 1875, the series comprises 122 games, making it the third longest in NCAA annals. Yale holds the lead, 64-50-8.

THE TIE

Arguably the most discussed game in the formal history of the Ivy League is the 29-29 tie between Yale and Harvard on Nov. 23, 1968. Both teams came in undefeated and untied (8-0), the first time that had happened in the series since 1909. With Brian Dowling passing for two touchdowns and running for two others against Harvard's "Boston Stranglers" defense, Yale took leads of 22-0 and 29-13, and many in the sellout crowd of 40,280 headed home. Two Yale turnovers, however – the Bulldogs' sixth and seventh of the day – enabled Harvard to score two touchdowns in the final 42 seconds. Frank Champi, backup quarterback, passed to Pete Varney for the tying conversion after time had expired.

TWINNS

The Abare twins, who made big contributions on special teams and defense last year as freshmen, are the fifth set of twins known to have played football at Yale. One pair played elbow to elbow – Rob and Chris Michalik, starting left guard and center, respectively, in 1990. Other twins to wear the Blue were Dick and Bob Jacunski in 1960, Jim and John Quinn in the mid-1980s, and Andy and Chris Gagan in 1999.

UNIFORMS

Yale's basic home uniform – white helmet with a double blue stripe and block "Y," white pants with double stripe, and blue jersey without stripes – has gone virtually unchanged since 1965, when sleeve stripes were eliminated. The bulldog logo now on the sleeve dates from 1996, and the "Y" on the helmet was given an outline in 1997. Yale adopted white jerseys for road games in 1956. The shade of the home jersey was fixed in the 1970s at PMS 289 on the Pantone color system.

UPSETS

Of all Yale victories against the odds, four stand out:

- the 21-13 victory over Army in 1929, in which Albie Booth brought Yale back from a 13-0 deficit;
- the 7-0 win at Princeton in 1934, the Tigers' only loss in a span of 30 games;

- the 14-12 defeat of nationally ranked Army in 1955;
- the 23-19 comeback victory over Navy's Liberty Bowl team of 1981.

Possibly the most lasting fame attaches to the '34 Princeton game, in which Yale's 11 "iron men" played the full 60 minutes without a substitution.

In football's early days, nearly any Yale loss, except to its ancient foes Princeton and Harvard, was considered an upset. In the modern era, Yale's two most notable reversals were the 29-29 tie in 1968 with Harvard, which scored twice in the last 42 seconds, and the 35-31 loss in 1981 to Princeton, which overcame a 21-0 Yale lead. That defeat ended an unprecedented 14-year Yale winning streak against the Tigers.

WALLAND, JOE '00

Holder of 25 Yale records when he graduated, Walland made his mark in the NCAA Record Book in his final game against Harvard. Dehydrated by flu and running a temperature of 103, he left a hospital bed and completed 42 of 67 passes for 437 yards in leading Yale to a 24-21 comeback victory. His 20-for-33 third quarter and his 33-for-51 second half set Division I-AA records for attempts and completions. Walland also finished his career with the lowest interception rate – 1.65 percent in 787 attempts – in Division I-AA history. Biggest thing for Yale fans, though, was that the last pass of his career – to Eric Johnson with 29 seconds left – won The Game and brought Yale its first Ivy championship in 10 years.

WINNING STREAKS

Yale has posted two of the four longest winning streaks in college football history. The Bulldogs won 37 in a row from 1887 to 1889 and another 37 from 1890 to 1893. Both streaks were ended by Princeton. The 1887-89 streak was part of a 48-game (47-0-1) undefeated run begun in 1885. The 1890-93 streak included 35 consecutive shutouts.

ZURAW, JOSEPH H. '79

A reserve linebacker at Yale, Joe Zuraw is the last man on Yale's list of almost 3,000 gridiron lettermen. He now directs a division of Bayer Pharmaceuticals in West Haven.

YALE FOOTBALL TIMELINE

1870's

Oct. 31, 1872

David Schley Schaff, Elliot S. Miller, Samuel Elder and other members of the class of 1873 call a meeting of the Yale student body. From it emerges the Yale Football Association, the first formal entity to govern the game at Yale. Schaff is elected president and team captain.

Nov. 16, 1872

With faculty approval, Yale meets Columbia, the nearest football-playing college, at Hamilton Park in New Haven. The game is essentially soccer with 20-man sides, played on a field 400 by 250 feet. Yale wins 3-0, Tommy Sherman scoring the first goal and Lew Irwin the other two.

Nov. 15, 1873

Yale and Princeton inaugurate what will become Yale's longest rivalry. Princeton wins 3 goals to 0.

Nov. 13, 1875

Yale and Harvard meet for the first time at Hamilton Park. The game is played under the so-called "concessionary rules" – 15 players on a side and running with the ball permitted as in rugby, a round ball and only goals counting as in soccer. A crowd of 2,000 pays 50 cents a head – twice the normal price for a Yale game – to watch Harvard win 4-0.

1880's

1880

Yale's Walter Camp, in his third year as Yale's delegate at the Intercollegiate Football Association rules convention, persuades the meeting to accept 11-man, rather than 15-man, sides. He also replaces rugby's scrum with the scrimmage, which "takes place when the holder of the ball ... puts it down on the ground in front of him and puts it in play by snapping it back with his foot."

Nov. 24, 1881

Princeton, using stalling tactics, holds Yale to a 0-0 tie after two overtimes. Camp's response is to create the downs system in the rules for 1882. A team must gain 5 yards in three downs or give up the ball.

1883

Camp completes the basic structure of American football by instituting numerical scoring values: touchdown, 2 points; goal after touchdown, 4; field goal, 5; safety, 1.

Oct. 1, 1884

Yale plays for the first time at the original Yale Field on Derby Avenue. The Blue beats Wesleyan 31-0.

Nov. 5, 1884

Wyllis Terry sets a record that still stands by running the length of the field – 110 yards – to score in a 46-0 defeat of Wesleyan.

Oct. 30, 1886

Wesleyan is the victim of another record as Yale's Henry Beecher scores 11 touchdowns in a game. Yale wins by its highest score ever, 136-0.

1888

Yale completes a 13-game schedule unbeaten, untied and unscored upon, piling up 698 points.

Nov. 28, 1889

A 10-0 loss to Princeton in New York ends a Yale unbeaten streak of 48 games (47-0-1).

1889

Yale places three men – Pudge Heffelfinger, Charley Gill and Amos Alonzo Stagg – among the 11 on the first All-America team. Sportswriter Caspar Whitney publishes the selections in his magazine, The Week's Sport, apparently with input from Walter Camp. The same year, Handsome Dan, the Yale bulldog, appears at his first football game, becoming the first collegiate mascot.

1890's

1890

Amos Alonzo Stagg, Yale degree in hand, takes the football coaching job at Springfield YMCA College. It's the start of a head coaching career that won't end until December 1946.

Nov. 27, 1890

A crowd of 30,000 at Eastern Park in Brooklyn sees Thomas "Bum" McClung score four touchdowns in a 32-0 rout of Princeton. Yale's share of the gate, $11,185, brings football revenues for the year to $18,392, enough to pay for the entire athletic program.

Sept. 20, 1892

Walter Camp receives a letter: "Will you kindly furnish me with some points on the best way to develop a good football team. I am ... connected with this University and have been asked to coach the team." It's signed by James Kivlan, University of Notre Dame.

November 1892

After coaching Yale to a 67-2 record in five seasons, Walter Camp heads west and becomes part-time coach of Stanford. He'll leave active coaching in 1895 with a career record of 79-5-3.

Nov. 24, 1894

Yale, led by four-time All-American Frank Hinkey at end, defeats Harvard 12-4 in a match of unbeaten teams in Springfield, Mass. The game is so rough that the schools suspend relations until 1897.

1900's

Nov. 24, 1900

Yale's "Team of the Century," with four-time All-American Gordon Brown at guard, crushes previously unbeaten Harvard 28-0 at Yale Field completing a 12-0 season. Some in the crowd of 22,000 try out a new Yale song: "Boola, Boola."

Nov. 12, 1904

Another Yale song, "Down the Field," makes its debut at Princeton's University Field, where Yale shuts out the Tigers 12-0.

Jan. 27, 1906

In response to deaths and injuries in 1905 games, the football rules committee agrees to sweeping changes, making the forward pass legal for the first time. The committee's 14 members include three Yale men: Walter Camp; A.A. Stagg, coach at the University of Chicago; and Dr. Harry Williams, coach at Minnesota.

1909

Yale grad Howard Jones, destined to become a coaching legend at Southern California, hits the jackpot in his one season coaching his alma mater. Led by fullback Ted Coy, Yale goes undefeated, untied and unscored-on in 10 games, blanking previously unbeaten Harvard 8-0 in the finale.

1912

The rules committee again changes point values, bringing them essentially to today's: touchdown, 6 points; goal after touchdown, 1; field goal, 3; safety, 2.

70

YALE FOOTBALL TIMELINE

1910's

Oct. 17, 1914

Notre Dame comes to Yale Field with a 27-game unbeaten streak and leaves a 28-0 loser. Knute Rockne, in 1914 an assistant coach at Notre Dame, later will call the defeat "the most valuable lesson Notre Dame ever had in football. It taught us never to be cocksure."

Nov. 21, 1914

Yale Bowl, largest stadium yet built in America, opens with a capacity crowd of 70,000. Only those on the visitors' side are happy as Harvard triumphs, 36-0.

Sept. 30, 1916

Yale players wear jersey numbers for the first time in a 25-0 victory over Carnegie Tech. Captain Cupe Black, a guard, is issued No. 1.

1918

With World War I raging, Yale suspends football for a year. Among the war's victims is 1915 captain Alex Wilson, killed as an infantry captain in France.

1920's

Nov. 3, 1923

The largest crowd ever to watch a Yale game – estimated at 80,000 – sees coach T.A.D. Jones' team surge back from a 10-7 halftime deficit to rout Army 31-10.

Nov. 24, 1923

In a sea of mud at Boston, Yale completes a perfect (8-0) season by defeating Harvard 13-0.

March 13-14, 1925

Walter Camp, 65, dies in his sleep between sessions of a football rules committee meeting in New York.

Nov. 19, 1927

T.A.D. Jones, doing well in his offseason businesses, ends his coaching career with a 14-0 victory at Harvard. Yale winds up 7-1, losing only to national championship claimant Georgia.

Oct. 26, 1929

With Yale down 13-0 in the second quarter against Army, coach Mal Stevens sends in a 5-foot-7 sophomore tailback, Albie Booth. Booth rushes for 144 yards, runs back a punt 74 yards, scores three touchdowns and kicks the extra points for a 21-13 Yale victory.

1930's

Oct. 31, 1931

The Bowl is a madhouse. Albie Booth scores three touchdowns – on a 94-yard kickoff return, a 22-yard pass and a 53-yard run. Dartmouth's Wild Bill McCall matches him with scoring plays of 76, 92 and 60 yards. A 23-point Yale lead goes down the tubes and the teams tie, 33-33.

Nov. 17, 1934

In one of its greatest upsets, Yale makes a first-quarter touchdown stand up for a 7-0 victory over Princeton, the Tigers' only loss in a span of 30 games. Sophomore Larry Kelley, destined to win the Heisman Trophy in 1936, makes one of his first big plays, scoring on a 49-yard pass from Jerry Roscoe.

Oct. 17, 1936

Larry Kelley sets off a furor in the Navy game at Baltimore when he kicks a free ball fumbled by Navy's Sneed Schmidt. Yale recovers on the Middies' 2-yard line and Clint Frank goes over for a 12-7 victory. Yale coach Ducky Pond calls the kick accidental and Schmidt agrees. Even so, there's clamor for a rule change – but only a footnote results.

Nov. 13, 1937

On a soggy field, Clint Frank rushes 19 times for 190 yards and four touchdowns in a 26-0 romp against Princeton. Numbers like that pay off at season's end as Frank becomes Yale's second Heisman Trophy winner.

1940's

Oct. 4, 1941

Spike Nelson, Yale's first head coach who is not an alumnus, sees his team rally for an opening 21-19 upset of Virginia. It's the only highlight as Yale loses its next seven games and Nelson is replaced by Howie Odell.

1944

With most of the campus taken over by World War II armed service trainees, Howie Odell patches together an undefeated (7-0-1) team, Yale's first in 20 years. Missing from the schedule are Princeton and Harvard, which have suspended football for the duration.

Sept. 28, 1946

Levi Jackson, Yale's first African-American football player, makes his debut, scoring twice as the Bulldogs beat the Merchant Marine Academy 33-0. By the time he's done in 1949, he'll own Yale records in rushing, punting, punt returns and kickoff returns.

December 1946

Fritz Barzilauskas, a Yale guard, is chosen in the first round of the NFL draft by the Boston Yanks, becoming the third player taken overall. He receives a record salary for a rookie lineman: $9,000.

Nov. 19-20, 1948

First-year head coach Herman Hickman recites "Spartacus to the Gladiators" at the final practice to fire up his troops for Harvard. It's wasted as Harvard wins 20-7.

1950's

Nov. 22, 1952

Yale pounds Harvard 41-14 and Jordan Olivar, who has succeeded Herman Hickman, lets the kids have fun. Charley Yeager, team manager, suits up at halftime and scores the 41st point on a pass from Ed Molloy.

1954

The Presidents' Agreement of 1954 brings the Ivy League colleges together under a pact that covers scheduling, eligibility, scholarships, spring practice and postseason play.

Nov. 24, 1956

Yale crushes Harvard 42-14 to clinch the first formal Ivy championship. Yale goes 7-0 in the league, 8-1 overall.

1959

Yale goes through its first five games unbeaten, untied and unscored-on, something no major team has done since 1943. The streak carries 10 minutes and 46 seconds into the third quarter of Game 6 against Dartmouth, but then everything unravels. The Bulldogs lose that game and two of the next three.

1960's

1960

No slip-ups this year as Yale (9-0) goes undefeated and untied for the first time since 1923. Stars include captain and tackle Mike Pyle, headed for the Chicago Bears, and All-America guard Ben Balme.

March 6, 1963

John Pont is named head coach after Jordan Olivar's resignation to pursue West Coast business interests.

YALE FOOTBALL TIMELINE

Nov. 22, 1963

President John F. Kennedy's assassination on a Friday afternoon prompts Yale and Harvard to postpone The Game. Their action sets a precedent as almost 90 percent of the nation's colleges follow suit.

Jan. 29, 1965

Carm Cozza, an assistant on John Pont's staff, is named Yale's head coach after Pont's departure for Indiana. Cozza's tenure will last longer than any other at Yale – 32 seasons.

Sept. 24, 1966

Brian Dowling throws the first of the 30 touchdown passes in his Yale career. Despite injuries that cost him the equivalent of a full season, he'll compile the best record by a Yale quarterback since the early 1900s – 15 victories, no losses, one tie.

Nov. 18, 1967

Brian Dowling catches a 60-yard TD pass from Calvin Hill as Yale beats Princeton 29-7, ending a six-year losing streak against the Tigers. The victory also clinches the first of 10 whole or partial Ivy championships under Carm Cozza.

Nov. 23, 1968

Yale and Harvard both arrive at their matchup undefeated for the first time since 1909. Harvard rallies for 16 points in the last 42 seconds, earning a 29-29 tie that gives both sides final records of 8-0-1.

1969

The Dallas Cowboys select running back Calvin Hill in the opening round of the NFL draft, making him the 2nd Yale to be a first-round pick. Hill justifies their pick by winning the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year.

1970's

Nov. 25, 1972

Dick Jauron rushes for 183 yards, including a 74-yard touchdown run, as Yale comes back from a 17-0 deficit to beat Harvard 28-17. Jauron becomes the first Yale runner to gain 1,000 yards in a season with 1,055 and pushes his career rushing total to 2,947.

Nov. 23, 1974

Yale comes within 15 seconds of a perfect season, but Harvard's Milt Holt scores to spoil it all, 21-16.

Nov. 20, 1976

Carm Cozza, after retiring as coach to become Yale's full-time athletic director, decides coaching is what really counts and quits the AD job.

Nov. 12, 1977

John Pagliaro's 172 rushing yards in a 24-7 win over Harvard give him a record season total of 1,159.

1980's

Oct. 4, 1980

Yale holds off Air Force, 17-16, for Carm Cozza's 100th victory as head coach.

Oct. 11, 1980

Yale plays its first night game, falling 27-9 to Boston College despite the efforts of Kevin Czinger, the only middle guard to be the Ivy League's MVP.

Nov. 14, 1981

Princeton's Bob Holly scores with 4 seconds left to beat Yale 35-31, spoiling the Bulldogs' bid for a perfect season. The defeat ends a 14-year Yale winning streak against Princeton. Lost in the excitement is a Yale record by Rich Diana: 222 rushing yards on 46 carries.

Oct. 4, 1986

Junior quarterback Kelly Ryan, throwing from shotgun formation because of a bad knee, passes for 426 yards in a 41-24 loss to Army.

1987

Kelly Ryan and friends work their aerial magic for 3 last-minute victories: 30-27 over Connecticut, 0:18 left; 40-34 over William & Mary, 0:23 left; 28-22 over Penn, 0:06 left. They almost do it again in a sub-zero wind chill against Harvard, but a late fumble lets the Crimson edge Yale for the Ivy title, 14-10.

Nov. 11, 1989

A 14-7 victory at Princeton gives Yale its 150th victory under Carm Cozza and a share of the Ivy championship.

1990's

Nov. 23, 1996

A Yale rally falls short as the Blue bows to Harvard, 26-21, in Carm Cozza's final game as coach. He retires with 179 victories, most ever by an Ivy coach, and a .599 winning percentage (179-119-5).

Sept. 20, 1997

Jack Siedlecki makes his debut as Yale's head coach, and it's not fun. Forced by injuries to start a freshman quarterback, Siedlecki sees his squad fall 52-14 to Brown.

Nov. 20, 1999

Yale beats Harvard 24-21 to complete a 9-1 season, reversing the record of Jack Siedlecki's first year. The victory, before 52,484 witnesses, ties Yale with Brown for the Ivy League title, the Blue's first since 1989. Joe Walland (42 for 67, 437 yards) throws the winning TD pass to Eric Johnson with 29 seconds left and ends his career with Yale records for TD passes (35) and passing yards (4,832). Johnson's 21 catches and 244 receiving yards are Yale single-game records.

2000's

Sept. 16, 2000

Yale defeats Dayton 42-6 to become the first gridiron program – scholastic, college or pro – to win 800 games.

Nov. 18, 2000

Rashad Bartholomew's 119 yards in a 34-24 victory at Harvard give him two Yale rushing records: 1,232 yards for the season, 3,015 for his career.

Sept. 28, 2002

Alvin Cowan, destined to become Yale's career passing leader (5,481 yards), breaks a leg in the opening series at Cornell. Running back Robert Carr takes up the slack with a school-record, 235-yard rushing day as Yale wins 50-23. Carr will go on to set the school career record with 3,393 yards.

Oct. 25, 2003

After a 28-point fourth-quarter rally, Yale falls to Penn in overtime, 34-31. It's Yale's first overtime game in 122 years.

April 2004

Nate Lawrie, Yale's tight end, is a sixth-round draft choice of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, becoming the 42nd Yale player drafted by an NFL club.

Nov. 19, 2005

Yale and Harvard set a precedent: For the first time in their rivalry they play overtime. They go to a third OT period before Clifton Dawson's touchdown wins it for Harvard, 30-24.

THE UNIVERSITY

YALE BOWL

One of the true treasures in American sports, the historic Yale Bowl celebrated its 91st birthday last fall. This magnificent facility, which opened on November 21, 1914, for the Yale–Harvard game, has been the site of 554 Bulldog football games, two seasons of NFL action, and was the main venue for the 1995 Special Olympic World Games.

The Bowl is 930 feet long and 750 feet wide, covering 12 1/2 acres. More than 320,000 cubic feet of earth was moved to form the Bowl and the stadium now contains 22,000 cubic yards of concrete and 470 tons of steel. The capacity of the Bowl is 64,269 (it was 70,869 before alterations in 1994) and every seat has an unobstructed view of the playing field. The original seating capacity was 60,617 with an undetermined amount of standing room.

The Bowl has held crowds of over 70,000 on 20 occasions, the most recent on November 19, 1983, for the 100th playing of the Yale–Harvard game. The largest crowd to attend a Yale game at the Bowl was 80,000 for the Army game on November 3, 1923. The crowd of 75,300 which attended the Yale–Harvard showdown in 1981 was the largest at a sporting event in New England in more than 50 years.

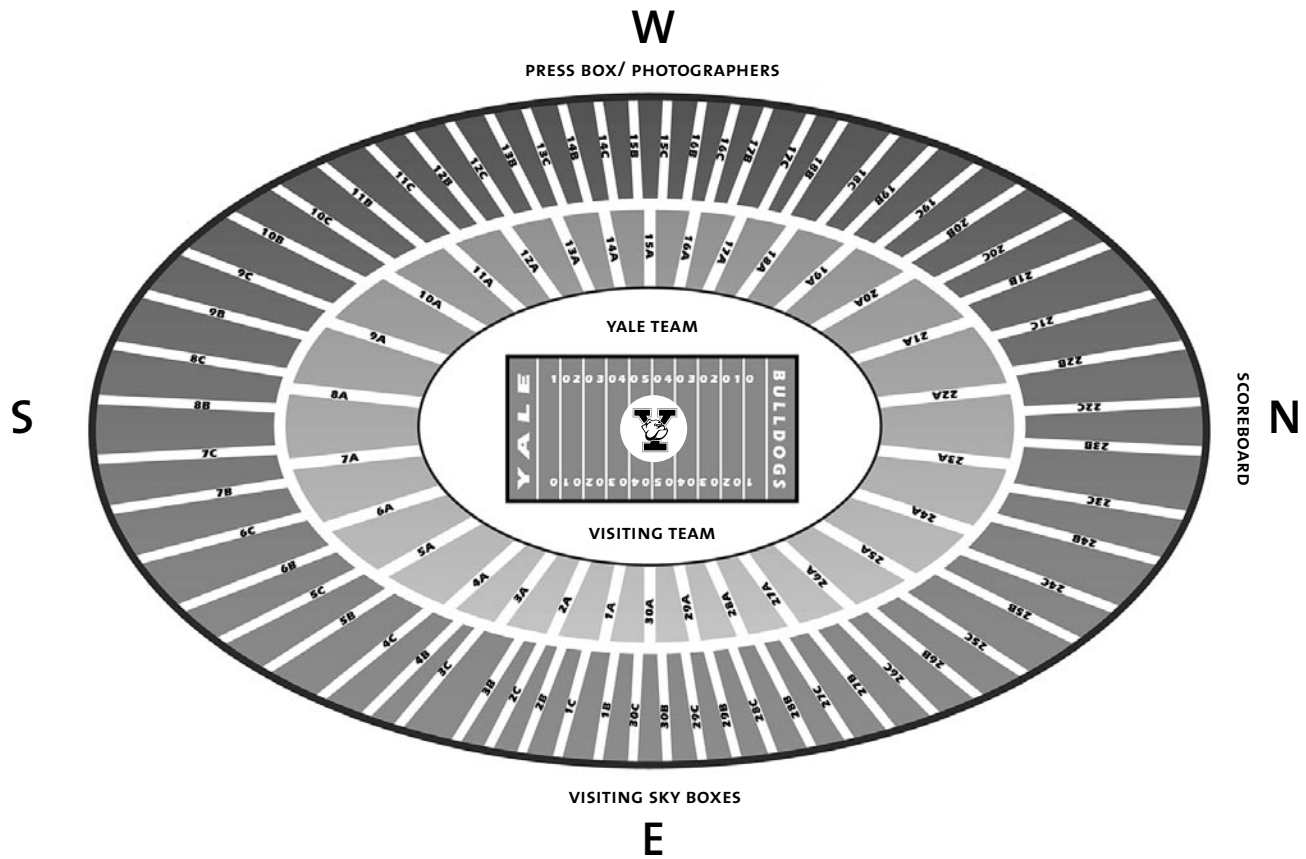

The NFL's New York Giants and Detroit Lions brought professional football to the Bowl for the first time in the summer of 1960. The Giants, who played the New York Jets in a number of memorable exhibition contests during the '70s, used the Bowl as their regular-season home field in 1973 and 1974 while Yankee Stadium was being renovated.

The design for the Yale Bowl was proposed by Charles A. Ferry, Class of 1871, as a replacement for Yale Field, the 33,000-seat home of the football team since 1884. Work began on the project in August, 1913, with 145 men working for the Sperry Engineering Company of New Haven. The portals were constructed first; then the excavation began. Once the 30-foot walls were formed to support the top rows of seats, the nearly 30 miles of wooden-backed seats were put in place. The cost of the final product: $750,000. The electrified scoreboard was added in 1958, while the new press box was erected in 1986. The day after the 1993 season came to an end, the Yale Bowl playing surface got a face lift, which included new irrigation and drainage systems.

The World Games, international soccer contests and other special events being hosted on a regular basis make the Bowl one of the most significant venues in the East.

BULLDOG POWER

The Brooks-Dwyer Varsity Weight Room occupies 7,000 square feet on the 4th floor of Payne Whitney Gymnasium. It resides within the 21,000-square-foot Adrian C. Israel Fitness Center in a space originally occupied by racquetball/squash courts and a golf practice room. This facility was dedicated in May 1999 as part of a capital project undertaken to expand and modernize this 70-year-old cathedral of sports. The varsity weight room serves each of the University's intercollegiate sports programs and is equipped with rugged, versatile equipment such that groups of up to 70 student-athletes can train concurrently with optimal effectiveness and efficiency. The Brooks-Dwyer Varsity Weight Room was created in memory of Charles W. Brooks '35 and Martin Dwyer, Jr. '44 through the generosity of Michael C. Brooks '67 and Diana Dwyer Brooks '72.

The philosophy of Yale Bulldog Strength and Conditioning is comprised of three principles: First, and foremost, is the reduction of injury; second, is to focus on the specific tools needed for the sport; third is to create a positive training environment for each individual student-athlete.

Ground-based activities are the building blocks of every program regardless of the sport. Exercise selection and workload are cycled throughout the year. The training year for any sport is divided into four phases: Pre-season, in-season, post-season and off-season. At the end of each year programs are evaluated for strengths, weaknesses, or changes needed.

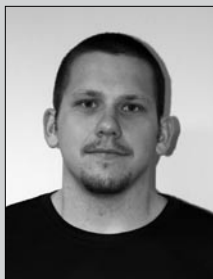

Emil Johnson
Head Strength and Conditioning Coach

Emil Johnson joined Yale as Head Coach of Strength and Conditioning in the summer of 2005. Formerly the University of Hartford strength and conditioning director (2001-05), Johnson served as an assistant strength and conditioning coach at the University of Maine for two years prior to that, and was the men's basketball strength and conditioning coach at DePaul in 1998-99. Johnson is a member of the National Strength and Conditioning Association (C.S.C.S.), the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association and USA Weightlifting (Club Coach Level 1 Certified).

Jeff Lee
Assistant Strength and Conditioning Coach

Jeff Lee joined Yale as Assistant Coach of Strength and Conditioning in the fall of 2005. Lee had been a graduate assistant at The Citadel for a year prior to joining the Bulldogs. Lee also worked at the U.S. Olympic Education Center in the winter of 2004, and interned at Binghamton University in the fall of 2003.

Lee earned a B.S. in physical education from Western Illinois in December of 2003, majoring in exercise science and minoring in nutrition. He is an NSCA Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist, USAW Sports Performance Coach, and has an American Heart Association CPR/AED Certification.

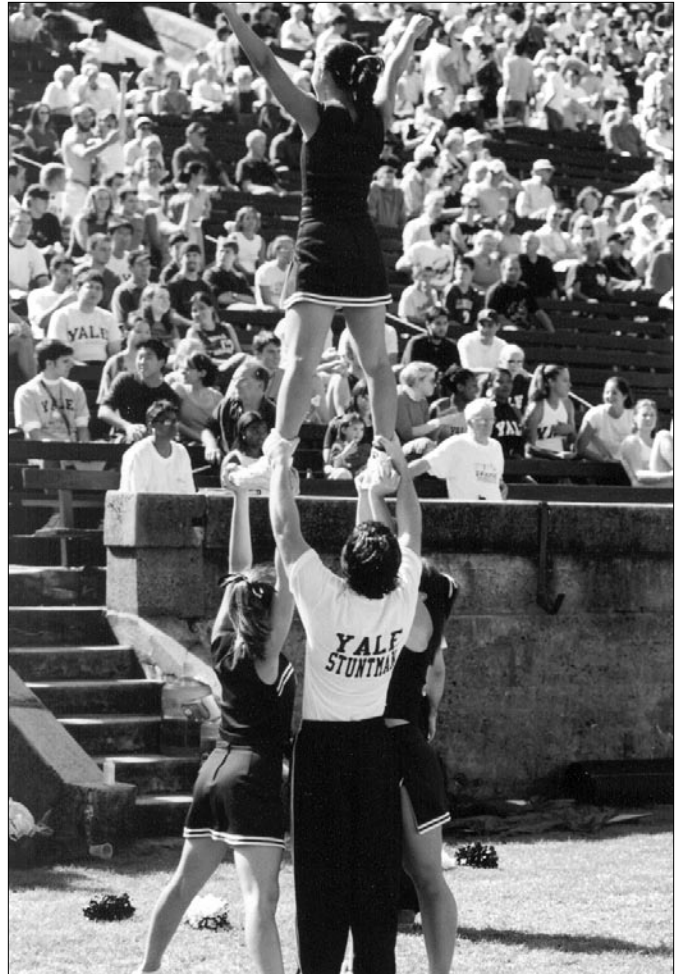

STATEMENT OF ATHLETIC PHILOSOPHY

Yale University offers its students a liberal education, one which has as its focus the intellectual and moral development of the individual, and which gives students a foundation for learning throughout their lives. Yale has long recognized that such an education is not fostered by its academic component alone. Part of it is constituted by those challenging and pleasurable experiences and extracurricular activities--like varsity and recreational athletics--that augment and enrich academic training.

In athletics, as everywhere else in the University, Yale is strongly committed to equal opportunity, and affirmatively seeks to attract exceptionally qualified students, coaches and staff of diverse backgrounds to its ranks.

As a part of its great athletic tradition, the University sponsors thirty-five varsity teams, with broad opportunities for participation by men and women, in which athletes of proven ability have the opportunity to test their skill and valor in intercollegiate competition. Through its commitment to competitive athletics, Yale demonstrates its belief that the lessons such engagement teaches are many and enduring. Among these are learning how to strive to win, to compete with pride and honor, to make sacrifices, to persevere when all seems lost, and to develop a sense of obligation and responsibility to others. These lessons make athletics a school for accomplishment and character, and for the athlete they represent an invaluable part of the non-academic aspects of a liberal education.

Because Yale views athletics as a component of liberal education, complementary to its central academic mission but not superior to it, the University requires that aspiration and achievement in competitive athletic endeavor play a proportioned role within any student's school life. The University also subscribes to the Ivy agreement, the principles of which delimit the role competitive athletic endeavor plays in the life of the University or of any individual student within it. These principles include the belief that student athletes should be generally representative of their class and admitted on the basis of academic promise and personal qualities as well as athletic abilities; that financial aid to student athletes be awarded in the same way it is awarded to other students, that is solely on the basis of financial need; that student athletes be held accountable to the same academic standards as other students; and that athletes make normal academic progress toward their degrees.

In addition to its sponsorship of competitive sports, Yale supports a wide range of extracurricular programs, including those that present significant opportunities for recreational and instructional participation. The University provides supervision for over thirty club sports, and has developed a large intramural program, which presents undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty fellows with the opportunity to participate in competitive sports throughout the calendar year. Yale considers the opportunities it offers in these areas to be an important contribution to the well-being of members of its community and is as dedicated to these extracurricular activities as to the continued strength of its competitive programs. In all aspects of sport and recreation, the University recognizes that shared experience can help create a strong bond among members of the University community, and between the University community and the wider world, and it is committed to fostering the spirit of pride and fellowship that athletic endeavor can inspire.

RICHARD C. LEVIN – UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Richard C. Levin is the longest serving Ivy League president and is recognized as one of the leaders of American higher education. Prior to assuming the presidency in 1993, he was Dean of Yale's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and Chair of Yale's Economics Department. He has been a member of Yale's faculty since 1974.

The internationalization of Yale has been one of President Levin's priorities. He launched the Yale Center for the Study of Globalization headed by former President of Mexico, Ernesto Zedillo. He created the Yale World Fellows Program to build and train a world-wide network of emerging leaders, and he provided international students in Yale College with the same generous financial aid awarded to U.S. students. In 2005, Yale announced that it would provide every undergraduate student the opportunity to go abroad for study, research or internships at least once during their four years of college. For students on financial aid, additional funding will be granted to make these overseas opportunities possible.

President Levin has focused on China as the University's internationalization efforts have developed. He has traveled to China five times in the last three years. Earlier, in 2001, he chose to give his Tercentennial Address on "The Global University" on the campus of Peking University, and he met with China's President Jiang Zemin in Beijing. In subsequent conversations with senior governmental officials, Yale was chosen to sponsor an advanced leadership program for the presidents and vice presidents of China's fourteen leading universities. That program was held in New Haven during both the summers of 2004 and 2005, and the participants will convene again in China during the summer of 2006. Similarly, Yale was chosen to sponsor an executive education program for the most senior cohort of Chinese governmental officials to study outside the country; that program, held at Yale in 2005 and to be repeated in 2006, was devoted to exploring how the rule of law could be further extended in China.

President Levin holds an Honorary Degree from Peking University and an Honorary Professorship from Fudan (Shanghai) University. He spoke on behalf of all visiting university presidents at Fudan's Centennial Celebration in 2005.

In addition to his frequent trips to China, President Levin has led faculty delegations to Japan, South Korea, India and Mexico as part of Yale's expansion of research and educational ties around the world. He delivered the Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas Memorial Lecture on "Patents in Global Perspective" in Mumbai in January 2005.

Under President Levin's leadership, Yale has invested more than $2 billion in a campus renovation and building program. To ensure Yale's preeminence in research and discovery, he has committed $1 billion to renovating and expanding Yale's medical and science facilities. One of the largest new medical research facilities in the United States opened in 2003, and laboratory buildings focused on environmental science, chemistry, and engineering have been completed recently.

President Levin has developed an effective partnership with the City of New Haven to expand commercial activity near the campus and increase the number of new local companies based on Yale research. During President Levin's term, New Haven's biotechnology industry has attracted over $2 billion of private sector investment to the region, and Yale has directly contributed more than $100 million to improvements in the City of New Haven since 1993. As a part of President Levin's commitment to community development, Yale also supports numerous programs that provide New Haven with the expertise and services of faculty and students.

President Levin is a director of Lucent Technologies and a trustee of the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, one of the largest philanthropic organizations in the United States. He served on Presidential Commissions reviewing the U.S. Postal Service and the effectiveness of U.S. intelligence operations. As a member of the Board on Science, Technology and Economic Policy at the National Academy of Science, President Levin co-chaired a committee that examined the effects of intellectual property rights policies on economic and scientific progress and made recommendations for reform of the patent system that are currently under active consideration by the U.S. Congress. In addition he served on the Blue Ribbon Panel on Baseball Economics.

A native of San Francisco, President Levin received his bachelor's degree in history from Stanford University in 1968 and studied politics and philosophy at Oxford University, where he earned a Bachelor of Letters degree. In 1974, he received his Ph.D. in economics from Yale and was named to the Yale faculty. He holds honorary degrees awarded by Harvard, Princeton, and Oxford Universities. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

President Levin maintains his involvement with students through regular meetings, meals in student dining halls, and attendance at sporting events. He and his wife, Jane, are longtime New Haven residents. They have four children and one grandchild.

TOM BECKETT – ATHLETICS DIRECTOR

Tom Beckett, in his 13th year at Yale, has built top-notch facilities, bridged the relationship between Yale and the New Haven Community, helped fill the seats at the large venues and has brought some of the best coaches and student-athletes to the campus during his tenure. President Richard Levin acknowledged his accomplishments when he reappointed Beckett, Yale's 17th chief of athletics, to a second term a year before his first pact had been completed.

THE RENOVATOR

Beckett has considerably raised the profile of an entity that was virtually ignored in the area to one the New Haven Community is proud of and supports. Among the many team accomplishments during his tenure, the men's hockey team won its first ECAC Championship, the men's basketball team captured its first Ivy title in 40 years, the volleyball squad became the first Ivy team to win an NCAA Tournament game, the women's golf team has won six of the nine league championships, lightweight crew captured three national titles and the women's squash team has won the last three national titles.

THE COMMUNITY PILLAR

Since taking over at Yale, Beckett has made community involvement a high priority for the school's athletic programs. His leadership in community endeavors paved the way for an endowment to create the award-winning Thomas W. Ford '42 Community Outreach Program, one that brings area youth to the campus for things such as the National Youth Sports Program and many others.

THE MARKETER

Beckett has opened the doors of the department of athletics to those who live outside the campus to give them a chance to experience the special environment with the hopes that they will return and support the varsity teams. This has been accomplished through his extensive community outreach program, and it is no coincidence that attendance at Yale football, hockey and basketball games has increased dramatically since he arrived in New Haven. The Bulldogs have been ranked among the top 10 NCAA I-AA football schools in attendance since Beckett has been at Yale and led the nation in 2003. He implemented a Yale Corporate Partners Program, developed a new Yale Athletic Department logo, and strengthened a broad-based Friends of Yale Athletics group, the Ray Tompkins Associates. In addition, his work with corporate partners has ensured that all Yale undergraduates can attend all home contests for free.

THE BUILDER

Part of Beckett's original vision was that Yale's coaches and athletes deserved better facilities. He has worked tirelessly to raise money for improvement projects, and his success is manifested all over the Yale campus. To start with, there is the renovation of the Payne Whitney Gymnasium including the creation of the 57,000-square foot Colonel Lanman Center, the "Ace" Israel Fitness Center, the Brooks-Dwyer Varsity Weight Room, the Brady Squash Center and the McNay Family Sailing

Center. In October of 2000 he helped dedicate the new Gilder Boathouse on the Housatonic River in Derby. In addition, Johnson Field (field hockey, lacrosse) and the Dewitt Family Softball Complex were recently built, while renovations on the Golf Course at Yale (site of the 2004 NCAA East Regional) have brought it to an unprecedented level. His latest project was the installation of a banked track inside Coxe Cage named after Frank Shorter '69. Beckett is currently overseeing the restoration of the world famous Yale Bowl.

THE FAN

It would be safe to say that very few if any Yale athletic directors attended games as regularly as Beckett does. He relishes the opportunity to show his support of the players and coaches who represent the university, and everyone involved in Yale athletics recognizes the intensity of his commitment to the program.

THE TRAILBLAZER

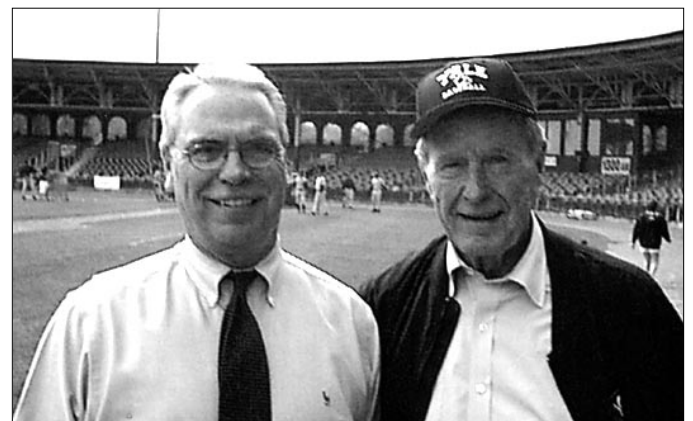

Working closely with admissions, financial aid and head coaches, Beckett helped streamline the process required to recruit the best student-athletes while improving the relationship between athletics and those two departments. He regularly meets with recruits and has been a vital ingredient in improving the department's yield rate.

THE SEASONED ADMINISTRATOR

A 1968 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, Beckett earned three varsity letters in baseball and basketball, serving as the captain of the Panthers' 1968 baseball team. He earned a master's degree in education from his alma mater in 1972 and is a 1975 graduate of Harvard's Institute of Life Science. Beckett played professional baseball in the San Francisco Giants' organization for five seasons before embarking on a career in college athletics. He coached at the University of Pittsburgh and Butler Community College (PA), and was an athletic administrator at San Jose State University before moving to Stanford, where he served from 1983 to 1994 as associate director of athletics. During his tenure at Stanford, Cardinal teams won 32 NCAA championships, and the program received seven NCAA "Champion of Champions" awards, emblematic of the overall success and excellence of Stanford athletics.

PERSONAL

Beckett and his wife, Kim, reside in Guilford with their son, Alex.

ABOUT YALE

HISTORY

Yale University, founded in 1701, is the third-oldest college in the United States and one of the foremost research universities in the world. First known as the Collegiate School, it changed its name in 1718 to honor benefactor Elihu Yale.

STUDENTS

Since its first class, which had only one pupil, Yale has expanded into a university with 5,200 undergraduates and 11 graduate and professional schools with roughly 5,800 students. Women were admitted to graduate schools in 1892 and to the undergraduate college in 1969. Today they make up about 50 percent of the enrollment. Students come from all 50 states and over 70 countries.

FACULTY

The Yale faculty includes more than 3,100 scholars, many of whom are internationally respected authorities in their fields. Fourteen Nobel Prize winners have been associated with Yale.

CLASSES

There are approximately 2,000 courses and 75 majors or programs of study, including 35 different languages.

ADMISSIONS

In selecting a class of 1,300 from approximately 19,500 applicants, the Admissions Committee looks for strong academic ability and achievement combined with personal characteristics such as motivation, curiosity, energy, and leadership ability. Academic strength is indicated by grades, rigor of curriculum, standardized test scores, and evaluations by two teachers and a college counselor. Yale requires results of the College Board Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT or SAT 1) and any three SAT II:

Subject Tests or the American College Testing (ACT) Assessment. Yale will also accept the Common Application. In addition, students whose native language is not English must submit results of the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Financial Aid

It is Yale's policy to admit all students on the basis of academic and personal promise without regard to their financial circumstances. In addition, the University is committed to meeting the full need of all admitted students by providing them with appropriate financial aid awards. This "need-blind" admissions policy applies to all applicants including international citizens. Currently, approximately 40 percent of all Yale students receive financial assistance through loans, scholarships and work-study employment. For more information, call the Yale Financial Aid Office at 203-432-2700.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE

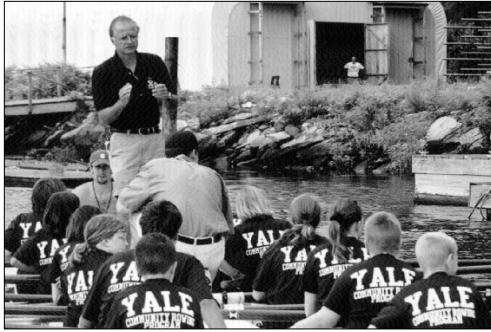

Each incoming student is assigned to one of 12 residential colleges before arriving freshman year. All freshmen and sophomores are required to live on campus. Each residential college has its own dining hall, as well as library, computers, TV and game rooms, and often theaters, weight rooms, and music practice rooms. The residential colleges sponsor numerous academic and extracurricular programs, including musical performances, dramatic productions, intramural sports teams, visiting fellowships and academic seminars. A resident master and dean take care of the academic and administrative needs of each college, and faculty "fellows" participate in the community by acting as student advisors and eating in the college's dining hall.

ATHLETICS

With 35 varsity sports teams and a large intramural program, sports have a prominent place at Yale. The University offers more than 500 acres of playing fields and nine-story Payne Whitney Gym, one of the largest athletic structures in the world. No university takes greater pride in its athletic heritage. No fewer than 157 athletes have competed in the Olympics. Together they have brought home 102 medals – more than most nations– including 54 gold, 21 silver and 27 bronze.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

THOMAS W. FORD '42 COMMUNITY OUTREACH PROGRAM

The Thomas W. Ford '42 Community Outreach Program, which was given the Award of Excellence for Community Relations by Athletic Management magazine, has been a key element in enhancing the relationship of the university with the city of New Haven. Yale student-athletes and coaches help the programs provide opportunities for New Haven youth to interact with inspirational role models.

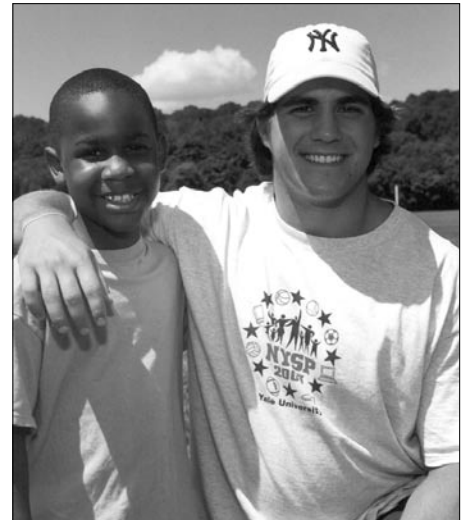

Founded in February 1995, the Community Outreach Program grew out of Athletic Director Tom Beckett's desire to see the department become more actively involved in the New Haven community. Beckett, who came to Yale in 1994, wanted to increase and centralize the community outreach efforts by developing service programs that were athletics-based. And he wanted the student-athletes to take part on their own initiative, not because of a coach's mandate.

NATIONAL YOUTH SPORTS PROGRAM

1996 marked the first year of the National Youth Sports Program (NYSP) at Yale University. The National Youth Sports Program is a summer day-camp, designed to give children from families that live in disadvantaged areas the opportunity to participate in group sports instruction and competition with children of similar ages. The NYSP is a partnership between the federal government's Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). This combination of federal funds and college resources offers leaders in education and athletics an opportunity and a challenge to perform a needed service that they are uniquely qualified to provide.

Participating youth receive sports skills instruction, engage in sports competition and improve their physical fitness. Children also receive hands-on lessons in good health practices and aspects of citizenship, and are introduced to future career and educational opportunities.

The goal of the NYSP at Yale is to create a program that is fun and educational and will benefit the children in our community for many years to come. In addition, the NYSP aims to expose participants to many resources on the Yale campus, including athletic facilities, dining halls, museums, art galleries, libraries, etc. More than 300 children were enrolled in each of the last three summers, while over 25 Yale student-athletes, coaches, and staff worked each year. Yale received the National NYSP Meritorious Award in 2000, 2002, and 2004. In 2001, the NYSP at Yale received the National NYSP Silvio O. Conte Award of Excellence and was recognized as the top program in the country.

OTHER FUNCTIONS OF THE OUTREACH PROGRAM

Youth Days: Each team at Yale hosts a Youth Day where children can attend a game — admission free — and interact with the athletes and coaches at the end of the contest.

Olympic Youth Days: In the fall prior to a Yale football game, the outreach program runs a number of clinics that children can participate in before attending the game in Yale Bowl. Then in April, another day is scheduled for similar clinics and a chance to visit a number of spring game venues after a cookout. New Haven School Program: The Outreach Committee works extensively with local schools in New Haven, where Yale athletes spend time with their young friends. More than 250 Yale athletes find time in their busy schedules to participate in outreach programs. Visits to area hospitals and soup kitchens and the forming of an indoor youth sports league are among the many student-athlete initiatives. In addition an NCAA Girls Sports Program is run throughout the year involving girls in New Haven between 10-16 years of age. Please contact Greg Brinn at (203) 432-3344 with any questions.

- You'll be informed – and you'll know you're giving Yale's student-athletes the resources and support they need to help reach their goals.
- You don't need to be a letterman or Yale alum to join. All you need is a desire to help the Bulldogs SCORE.
- For information, call the Alumni Office at (203) 432-1434.

The Yale Football Association consists of former players, alumni, parents, and friends. Membership is open to anyone interested in helping the Yale Football Program. The YFA's purpose is to provide alumni and friends information about the program. Members receive weekly newsletters, preseason and winter updates and more. The YFA also holds receptions and a summer golf outing.

The YFA encourages donations to support the costs associated with operating the football program. The funds are used for recruiting, staff travel and other administrative expenses. All funds are considered gifts to Yale University and the football program and are governed by departmental policy for compliance with Yale, Ivy League and NCAA requirements.

YFA members also help with career programs for the current players, by recommending them for internships or entrance into positions after graduation.

Your support provides a financially secure program to give coaches the resources need to continue Yale Football's rich tradition. To join the Yale Football Association, contact us using the following:

COVERING THE BULLDOGS

CREDENTIALS

Credentials for home games are for working media only. Accredited media should make requests in writing on letterhead at least two weeks in advance to Sports Publicity Director Steve Conn. If time permits, credentials will be mailed. Otherwise, they will be left at the will call window, located at field headquarters, opposite portal 12. PRESS PARKING is available in Lot F off of Central Avenue and Lot B off of Derby Ave.

INTERVIEWS

The best time to talk to Coach Jack Siedlecki by phone is late mornings. Siedlecki also is available at the conclusion of practice. During the season, Yale generally practices on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m. on the fields outside Yale Field (the baseball stadium) on Derby Avenue. Yale practice is open to the media.

MEDIA HEADQUARTERS

Three phones are available in the media room on the second floor of the Smilow Center. The numbers are (203) 764-9251, 764-9252 and 764-9253. A fax machine also is available for media use.

MEDIA LUNCHEON

Yale holds a weekly press luncheon with head coach Jack Siedlecki and at least one player at the Yale Golf Course on Tuesdays at noon beginning Sept. 13 and concluding Nov. 15, prior to the Harvard game. The opposing head coach participates through a phone hookup.

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Passes are limited to daily newspaper, wire service and team photographers. Freelance photographers may be granted passes upon request to the Sports Publicity Office. NCAA rules limit shooting to outside the restraining line enclosing the playing field and outside the 25-yard line.

POST-GAME PROCEDURE

Both coaches will be available at the Smilow Field Center Meeting Room on the 2nd floor. The visiting coach will go first, approximately 15 minutes after the game, followed by Yale head coach Jack Siedlecki. Principal Yale players and members of the visiting team also will be brought to the press conference. Yale is committed to the principle of equal access for media representatives but prefers that interviews be conducted in the media room. The Yale training room is off limits to the media at all times.

RADIO LINES

There are three permanent telephone lines installed for radio broadcasts. One line is for the flagship station of Yale football, and the other two are available for visiting stations. There is a $100 charge for rental of the lines. Checks should be made out to Yale Sports Publicity.

YALE SPORTS HOTLINE

All the latest scores, schedules and ticket information are available 24 hours a day by calling (203) 432-YALE (9253).
